WHAT STRANGE PURPOSE WAS IN MUENTER'S MIND AS HE WATCHED WIFE'S LONG DEATH AGONY

POISON VICTIM AND HER BABY

LAST PHOTOGRAPH OF MRS. ERICH MUENTER, POISON VICTIM, AND HER DAUGHTER, HELEN

Harvard Instructor, According to Nurse's Statement, Was Alone With Dying Wife for Hours—Why Did He Permit Her to Die Without Calling Help?

Sitting alone by the bedside of his dying wife, Erich Muenter, Harvard instructor, scientist, "mystic" and student of the occult, watched as the deadly poison she had taken ate its way through her system and marked every spasm and contortion it caused until merciful death ended her agony, without once calling for medical aid to alleviate her sufferings or try to save her life.

This fact is established by the statement to the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day by Mrs. Edith Chase, the Christian Scientist and nurse, who attended Mrs. Muenter until a few hours before her death. She left the sick woman at midnight, taking the baby, and went to sleep in the dining room. Muenter watched beside his wife. At 6 o'clock in the morning Muenter called Mrs. Chase and told her his wife was dead. She ran to the room and found the body already cold. Rigor mortis, which usually sets in from two to six hours after death, had commenced.

For six hours Muenter had been in that room, alone with the dying woman. For two hours at least she had been dead.

ONLY MUENTER CAN TELL.

What was this "mystic," this occultist, doing during that time? Why, when he saw that his wife was dying, did he not call for help? Why did he not awaken Mrs. Chase and tell her to call a physician? Why did he not make some effort to save the life of his wife, the mother of his children?

Only Muenter himself can tell. The fact remains that he did not. Undertaker Long said that when he saw the body it was contorted as if awful agonies had preceded death. And yet this man, who had sworn to love, honor and cherish this woman, had sat beside her bed for hours as the deadly drug sapped her strength and watched her as she writhed and twisted in the death agonies.

Why did he do it? What was his motive? None can say unless his studies, his delving into the awful mysteries of life and death, had so changed his nature that he was beyond all human emotions. Men have been known to lose all humanity in the pursuit of science. Was Erich Muenter one of these?

BIG QUANTITY OF POISON.

Did he feel no emotion as his eyes watched his wife's terrible agony? It seems almost beyond human belief that a man who, all his friends say, was a devoted husband and loving father, could have calmly and dispassionately watched the death of the one person he should have loved above all others, simply to gratify his scientific curiosity.

What did Muenter give his wife? Analysis of the organs of her body shows that aconite was there in large quantities. Did Muenter administer it, or was she a slave to the arsenic habit, as many women are?

Is it possible that this man, loving his wife, yet distrustful of her faith in Christian Science, intended only to cause her pain so that she would consent to have a physician called, and gave her too much of the drug?

It is possible that after her death the realization of the awful deed came over him and unbalanced his mind?

Is it this that has sent him perhaps to a

PARIS SOCIALIST AND LABOR LEADERS TAKEN

ACCUSED OF PLOTTING WITH BONAPARTISTS AGAINST THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT.

PARIS, April 30.—M. Griffuelhes, the Socialist leader and secretary of the Labor Confederation, and Xavier Pouliant, a Bonapartist, were arrested this morning for alleged connection with a plot to overthrow the republic.

The fact that Griffuelhes has been coupled by the authorities with the Bonapartist Pouliant has aroused a storm of indignation in the labor party which now has been a stanch supporter of the third republic as opposed to monarchism, and resents the slight upon the party's good faith. The houses of several members of the labor confederation were searched by the authorities this morning.

M. Levy, head of the labor confederation, was also arrested to-day on the charge of being connected with the alleged plot against the government. It is stated that the arrest of many other known royalists and Bonapartists is imminent.

The Socialist leader, M. Bressoles, was also arrested at Brest in connection with the alleged plot.

At Toulon a strike of the employes of the tramway system was declared to-day.

General Exodus Continues.

There is an unprecedented crush of travelers at the railway stations seeking to escape from the country.

The semi-panic has spread also among the Parisians of all classes, especially in the matter of the commissariat. There was never such a demand for food of all sorts. The stocks of canned goods in many places were exhausted. Most provision shops kept open all day yesterday. It was necessary in several cases to form the customers into line outside the doors to await their turn.

Reinforcements are still pouring into the city for the purpose of preserving order and it is estimated that 40,000 soldiers are now here, while more are coming all the time. The barracks are crowded to overflowing and the large hall of the city [illegible] Vaudeville, where the [illegible] typia, returned last evening, has been requisitioned as supplementary barracks. Many private houses are being used for the same purposes.

Try to Blow Up Bridge.

During the middle of the day two attempts were made to blow up the tracks of the railroads in the western part of the city, but the strikers were driven off by the soldiers.

Shortly after midnight a gang of men armed with drills and dynamite, began work on the Columbus viaduct. The sentry heard the drills working and went after the men. The dynamiters escaped, and later the guards found several holes drilled in the masonry.

All efforts to pacify the leaders of the Confederation of Labor have failed, and the Confederation has bid defiance to the government. Thirteen regiments of cavalry and twenty regiments of infantry hold the city in their power, but the depredations of the mob element continue. In a disturbance between the strikers and non-strikers yesterday, one of the latter was shot and killed.

SPENDS A FORTUNE, THEN KILLS SELF

HOLYOKE, Mass., April 30.—Joseph T. Prescott died to-day as the result of an attempted suicide by shooting April 2.

Prescott was a son of Charles B. Prescott, a prominent manufacturer, who was at one time postmaster of the city. He is said to have been despondent over the dissipation of a fortune of $150,000 left to him nine years ago by relatives.

PRESIDENT AND WIFE HAD SHORT CRUISE

WASHINGTON, April 30.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt, who left Saturday on a cruise down the Potomac River on the [illegible] Vaporita, where the party [illegible] returned last evening.

THEFT CHARGE SHOCKS SOCIETY

Back Bay leaders will crowd the usual benchers in the Municipal Criminal Court out into the corridors to-day, when Dr. Mary E. Webb, one of the most fashionable physicians to the members of the most exclusive set, is arraigned on the charge of having stolen $240 from Mrs. Ethel Stewart, another member of the inner circle.

The alleged larceny occurred while Dr. Webb was acting as attorney for Mrs. Stewart, she having accepted funds from the latter and refused to return them when requested to by Mrs. Stewart.

8 MOTORISTS FINED $15 EACH

Eight motorists were fined $15 each this morning by Judge Grover in the Dedham District Court for exceeding the fifteen mile an hour speed limit. They were Harvey S. Blake, Attleboro; A. R. Hooper, Jr., No. 393 Beacon street, Boston; Alfred N. Robinson, No. 11 Linden street, Lynn; F. A. Houghton, Providence; Richard F. White, Brookline; Prescott Bigelow, Jr., Bay State Road, Boston; Frank L. Tyler, Boston, and Herbert G. Potter, Pawtucket, R. I. F. A. Enstis failed to put in an appearance. Most of the defendants paid their fines. Others will fight the case.

BOY MISSING, MOTHER WEEPS

Mrs. Frances Trimblay of No. 134 Boulevard, Revere, is almost prostrated over the absence of her son, Albert, aged 14 years. The lad disappeared from home last Wednesday morning. He bought a ticket at 9:05 that morning at the Revere station, but Agent Clark does not know whether he took the train for Boston or Lynn.

Young Trimblay had spent two or three of the early days of last week in Worcester and when he got back some of his young friends teased him, telling him that the truant officer was after him. Trimblay said that he would never be caught, that he would go to Boston first.

The lad is five feet high and weighs 70 pounds. He had attended school in Montreal, Can., and was a fluent French speaker.

NO RAID AT 221 SHAWMUT AVE.

Through an error in transcribing police figures the announcement was made on Sunday that the officers of the Dedham Street Station had made a gambling raid at No. 221 Shawmut avenue. No raid was made by the police at that address. Captain O'Lafor and his men did raid another Shawmut avenue house and made one arrest.

Joseph L. Cody is the occupant of No. 221 Shawmut avenue, where he has lived for a number of years. Mr. Cody is well known in the South End as one of its most law abiding citizens and his friends were quite certain that he could have been in no way connected with any form of gambling.

FAIR WOMEN WHO WILL HELP TO MAKE LETTER CARRIERS' ASSOCIATION BALL A SUCCESS.

Proceeds for the Benefit of Postmen's Families in Case of Sickness or Death—Boston's Postmaster Will Be Honor Guest.

Members of the Letter Carriers' Mutual Benefit Association of the Boston Postal District will hold their annual concert and reunion next Wednesday evening in Mechanics Building. The entertainment socially and financially promises to be the most successful of the many which have been held by the association.

An elaborate musical programme has been arranged by the Letter Carriers' band of forty pieces, and from 8 to 8:15 o'clock a concert will be given, to be followed by a grand march in which it is expected that 3000 couples will participate. From 9:30 until 2 in the morning dancing will be the attraction.

As fully 10,000 people are expected to attend, the committee has procured both Mechanics and Exhibition halls. The grand ball will be devoted exclusively to the dancers. The proceeds from the ball will be used to aid carriers and their families in times of sickness and death. The honor guest will be Postmaster George A. Hibbard. Many prominent postal officials, representatives of State and City governments and the Massachusetts Senators and Congressmen have been invited.

Exhibition Hall will be most tastefully decorated and refreshment booths and small tables will be arranged so as to contribute to the greatest possible amount of enjoyment. From midnight until after 2 o'clock cars will be leaving the hall for all parts of the city.

The committee of arrangements is as follows: General committee—President, James P. Duffy; chairman, H. H. Norton; secretary, P. A. Cunningham; treasurer, W. T. Reed; J. Whitaker, J. F. Hayes, E. F. Smith, E. Donnelly, D. J. Ball, F. J. Morgan, C. S. Davis, W. A. Motley and J. J. Casey.

Assisting the committee of arrangements are: Miss Norah Sweeney, Agnes Ferguson, Lucy M. Hargrove, Miss John T. Cass and Mrs. John H. Gavin. Miss Katherine A. Duffey will be the leader in the grand march.

Printing committee—C. F. Duffey, chairman; J. Cass, J. H. Cleary, F. Tickle, C. H. Norton; transportation—S. H. Appleton, chairman, J. W. McGarrigle and W. Lovrien, A. E. Mobley, A. A. Robinson, press—C. F. Mitrey, chairman; D. J. Clifford, F. F. O'Leary, T. H. Lyons, W. T. Blick, J. T. Rice, A. Lawless, W. J. Dee; badges—E. S. Sullivan, chairman; F. O. Washburn, J. F. Lynch, F. H. Macklin, H. W. Howard; auditing—F. C. Fay, chairman; W. J. Doherty, T. F. Clough; entertainment—J. J. Duffy, W. T. Reed and C. H. Norton.

MRS. RAYMOND ILL; GRAND JURY NEAR END

COLLAPSES WHILE HACKETT MURDER CASE IS CONSIDERED—ARREST MAY COME TO-DAY.

READFIELD, Me., April 30.—On the eve of the Grand Jury's report on the murder of Mattie Hackett, Mrs. Bert Raymond, whose name has been mentioned in connection with the crime, has collapsed. It is feared that her illness is serious. She was taken to her bed and is constantly attended by a physician.

It is expected that the Grand Jury will rise Tuesday. Sheriff Ham has perfected plans for the immediate arrest of the suspected murderer, if the jury issues an indictment.

Bert Raymond was seen by a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter yesterday at his home and expressed confidence that his wife's vindication would be complete.

"I will go before the Grand Jury," he said, "and tell them what I know about this case."

Among the persons expected to testify to-day are Detectives Rogers and Martin of Boston and Miss Lillian Verrill.

Should the Grand Jury finish its deliberations to-day and fail to indict the suspected murderer of the Hackett girl he may be taken into custody before night

ROOSEVELT MAY INTERFERE IN COAL STRIKE

Hope for Peace Not Given Up, but Miner's Fate Seems in Hands of Mitchell.

CLASH BETWEEN WORKMEN

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 30.—Intimations are heard to-day that President Roosevelt will intervene at the last moment and forestall the bitter hard coal strike which impends, because two sides have been unable to agree as to the method of application of arbitration to the only question of difference, a demand for increased wages. To the mountain-dwelling Mitchell is waiting reports from district officers on the attitude of the miners regarding the refusal of the operators to accept the wage proposition. Delegates to the tri-district convention will be guided largely by Mitchell's advice, but it is believed they favor a general strike.

President Roosevelt has been kept informed of every move made in the negotiations, and when it is seen that a strike is inevitable, it is said, he will interfere and in a joint note to the operators and miners point the way by which both sides may meet the common basis of understanding as to how arbitration shall be applied to the present controversy.

Still Have Hopes of Peace.

Hope for peace in the region has not been abandoned, though some plain talk has been heard from the operators determined upon a strike, but are finishing their moves with the hopes that a purpose will be foraged in the public eye. President Mitchell has made no statement since last night, although, as they say, first arbitrating "to ascertain whether there is anything to arbitrate."

Miners Clash at Johnstown.

Because of the strike conditions existing under the suspension thousands of foreign mine workers have left the region, and to exodus to Europe and other parts of this country still continues without cessation.

From Johnstown comes a dispatch telling of a clash between strike and non union miners at the Paint Creek mines, in which three men were fatally hurt and many others injured. Knives and guns were freely used. Under protection of a troop of the State constabulary, the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company will attempt to operate its St. Nicholas and North Mahoney washeries with non-union hands.

MAYOR WILL LEAD GRAND MARCH AT CONCORD BALL

MRS. JAMES H. DOYLE | MRS. JOHN V. OMERLY

LEADERS IN CLUB BALL.

Governor Guild Also Among Distinguished Guests Who Will Grace Fete With Their Presence.

The third annual ball of the Concord club of the South End will be held to-morrow evening at their hall, and all plans for the same have been completed. It is asserted by the leaders of the various committees that the affair will be the most successful one the club has ever held.

Mayor Fitzgerald will lead the grand march with Mrs. James H. Doyle, wife of President Doyle of the club. They will be followed by the officers, including President Doyle, Mrs. O'Mealey and other members and their wives.

Among the other invited guests are Governor Guild, members of the Board of Aldermen and the Common Council, heads of the city departments, ex-Aldermen Rowen and McClellan, Representative Bethro and William Carlin.

The club is composed of active business men and politicians of the South End and has a membership which now reaches over 200. The officers of the club are: James H. Doyle, president; Dennis H. Mahoney, treasurer; John F. Egan, recording secretary; H. J. Quinn, financial secretary. President Doyle is head of the ball committee as floor director, assisted by Dennis H. Mahoney, Martin F. Donnelan and Michael J. Murphy.

MORAN POLICE CHARGE SHAMEFUL, SAYS COLE

CHAIRMAN FURIOUS AT THEFT ACCUSATION AGAINST HANOVER ST. STATION MEN.

Colonel Charles H. Cole, ex-chairman of the Board of Police, declared to-day that the manner in which District Attorney John B. Moran had set about the investigations of theft at the Hanover street station was an outrage.

The chairman used another word before the interview: Talking to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day he was visibly wrought up over the affair.

"District Attorney Moran has acted in not only a blundering but in a shameful manner," declared the chairman. "I tell the manner in which Mr. Moran has set about investigating the charges of theft at Station 1 is a d——— outrage."

Colonel Cole's face was flushed, and he looked angry all the way through when he said it.

"Evidence Flimsy."

"Mr. Moran has put every member of the Boston police force under an unjustified cloud of suspicion. The evidence he has in his possession of any theft having committed at the station is so flimsy as to be almost worthless.

"On the strength of that he has held the Boston police force up to public suspicion.

"I don't care if Mr. Moran does represent the State. He has acted largely on the testimony of irresponsible persons. The testimony of Veronica Crouin, who claimed to have lost articles of clothing at Station 1, I place little credit in, because she has been arrested several times. Many of the other losers of money accused three or four years ago.

"The statement that Station 1 is full of thieves is not only unjust but absurd."

The chairman knew of the complaint made by the husband of the Crouin woman to the effect that when she was arrested at the Hanover street station, she removed her silk waist and left it in the cell, but when she got the soiled in the cell and placed then between the bars. When she was removed from the cell it was claimed that they could not be found and were never returned to her.

Sent Case to Commission.

Mr. Moran summoned a number of officers from the North End station, and interrogated them about the loss. Then he discovered that several officers had lost sums of money during the last few years. Promptly he wrote out the facts and sent them to the Police Commission.

Commissioner Adams was the only member of the Board in the office at the time. He wrote a brief reply to the District Attorney, saying that was almost curt, saying that the matter would be looked into. The matter was turned over to Acting Superintendent Coulter for investigation.

Chairman Cole himself went to the Hanover Street Station Saturday night and talked with Captain Kimball about the charges. On his arrival at headquarters to-day he understood himself of his watch.

District Attorney Moran had nothing to say about the reply of the police board chairman to his charges.

$320,000,000 BACK OF MORSE FOR DICTATOR

Former "Ice King" After Control of Sea Transportation of North and South America.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Charles W. Morse, capitalist and one-time "Ice King," has almost secured a monopolistic control of the Atlantic coast steamship trade, freight and passenger, of North and South America.

Mr. Morse has already bought the controlling interest in eleven coaster lines, which he has consolidated into four main systems. He is now negotiating for several other lines, including the Panama Railroad steamship line. His actual possession of steamship companies to date represent in stock and bond issues $33,000,000. He has behind him over $20,000,000 of capital to assist him in gaining control of the other lines for which he is negotiating.

In the inner circles of Wall street it is regarded as certain that Mr. Morse within a very short time will be the absolute dictator of all sea transportation between the ports of North and South America on the Atlantic coast, and that he will then realize his ambition to consolidate all the Atlantic coast lines into one great shipping monopoly.

The companies which Mr. Morse already controls, through his recent negotiations, are the Clyde Steamship Company, the Metropolitan Steamship Company and the Eastern Steamship Company. He has also been in control for sometime of the Hudson Navigation Company, which is a large feeder of Atlantic coast lines. In the Eastern Steamship Company Mr. Morse has consolidated the Portland Steamship Company, the Boston and Bangor Steamship Company, the Kennebec Steamship Company and the International Steamship Company.

GAPON KILLED AS A TRAITOR BY TERRORISTS

Trap Laid for Him to Test Loyalty Ended in His Murder, Report Says.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 30.—That Father Gapon was murdered by revolutionists for being a traitor to the Anarchists seems to be confirmed by the latest reports. Father Gapon is represented as having entered into relations with a group of the "fighting organization" of the Terrorists, and in order to test his loyalty, one of the leaders offered to betray the secrets of the organization to the government.

Gapon, it is said, took the bait and offered to conduct the negotiations. Gapon went to Odarki, a small place beyond the Finnish frontier, to meet the Terrorist leader for a consummation of the agreement. He has not been seen since.

The plain inference is that the revolutionaries, finding Gapon to be a traitor, executed him and that Gapon's papers, which reached his lawyer, Mardolin, from Persia a few days ago, were forwarded after his death.

A member of the "fighting organization" yesterday attempted to assassinate Colonel Min, commander of the Semlowsky guards, in revenge for the part taken by his regiment in putting down the Moscow revolt.

A uniformed officer, a young man, had called several times at the residence of Colonel Min and requested to see him. The manner of the man excited suspicion and he was arrested, when it was found that he was a disguised revolutionist and was armed with a revolver and a dagger.

HELD FOR MURDEROUS ATTACK WITH KNIFE

WOUNDED MAN SEEKING POLICE AID IS ACCUSED OF STRIKING DOWN STOREKEEPER.

Accused of stabbing a Cambridge fruit dealer, who is dying at the Cambridge Hospital, Antonio Tekelthikdelos, a Greek, was arrested at the Back Bay police station this morning shortly after the attack, having gone there to have a wound in his hand dressed.

Peter Rumbos, of No. 27 Brattle street, Cambridge, was standing at the telephone in the rear room of his store at 9:15 this morning when a man grabbed him in the temple with a banana knife.

He crawled from the rear to the front room in an effort to summon aid, and fainted there. He was found unconscious by Timothy Goode, who has a store adjoining.

Find Knife in Cellar.

The knife was found in a nearby cellar, with the tip broken off.

The assailant fled after the stabbing, and while the police were searching for him, the physicians at the hospital were endeavoring to extract the tip of the blade from Rumbos' head.

Hardly more than two hours after the stabbing, Tekelthikdelos entered the Back Bay station and asked to have a deep gash in his hand dressed. The police became suspicious and detained him. He told the police, they say, that he had been cut in a fight in Cambridge.

The Cambridge authorities were communicated with, and inspector Norton came to this city and took the prisoner back with him.

Motive a Mystery.

The motive for the crime is unknown. There was considerable money in Rumbos' cash drawer and on his clothing which was not disturbed.

Rumbos had been in business in Brattle street with his brother Louis for fifteen years.

CONVICT CASHIER WHO STOLE $250,000

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 30.—Henry W. Goll, formerly assistant cashier of the First National bank, of Ashland, Wis., was found guilty Saturday by a jury in the United States District Court on fifteen counts out of thirty-four. He is alleged to have embezzled about $250,000.

NO WORK; ILL HEALTH; MAN COMMITS SUICIDE

LEOMINSTER, Mass., April 30.—Fred Townsend, an engraver employed by the Harvard Novelty Company, drowned himself near the beach here at an early hour this morning. Lack of work and ill health are given as the cause of the deed. Townsend left a note in his room, requesting that his body be sent to his father, Reuben Townsend, of Stonington, Me.

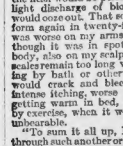
AWFUL PSORIASIS 35 YEARS

Terrible Scaly Humor in Patches All Over the Body—Skin Cracked and Bleeding—Itching Unbearable—Cured by Cuticura in Thirty Days at Cost of $4.75.

ANOTHER WONDERFUL CURE BY CUTICURA



"I was afflicted with psoriasis for thirty-five years. It was in patches all over my body. I used three cakes of Soap, six boxes Cuticura Ointment, and two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent. I bathed with the Soap, applied the Ointment once a day, and took the Resolvent as directed. In thirty days I was completely cured, and I think permanently, as it was about five years ago.

"The psoriasis first made its appearance in red spots, generally forming a circle, leaving in the center a spot about the size of a silver dollar of sound flesh. In a short time the affected circle would form a heavy dry scale of a white silvery appearance and would gradually drop off. To remove the entire scales by bathing or using oil to soften them the flesh would be perfectly raw, and a light discharge of bloody substance would come out. That scaly crust would form again in twenty-four hours. It was worse on my arms and limbs, although it was in spots all over my body, also on my scalp. If I let the scales remain too long without removing by bath or otherwise, the skin would crack and bleed. I suffered intense itching, worse at nights after getting warm in bed, or blood warm by exercise, when it would be almost unbearable.

Stories of Complications With a Woman in Germany Are Now Told About Missing Harvard Instructor Wanted for Wife Murder.

suicide's death or wandering about, desperate with remorse and grief?

There is still another explanation that can be made of why Muenter could forget all human emotion and watch the death of his wife. His friends say he was a "Mystic," that he believed that one who was an adept could see the soul leave the dead body.

DELVED INTO MYSTERIES.

Did he calmly watch the breath leave her depart and thus prove his theory? Had the body in the hope that he might see the soul doctrines of the cult of which he was a student gained such ascendency over his mind that he believed, as members of a certain sect do, that the period of motherhood is the psychological time for a woman to die? It is then, these "mystics" believe, that a woman has performed the highest function allotted her, and her soul is prepared to return whence it came.

Until Muenter or Jones and has told his story these questions will not be answered. He and he alone can tell what took place in that death chamber, can tell how his wife died and why he did not call for assistance. From the standpoint of his philosophy he may be able to satisfy himself that his course was right and proper. If he is found he must satisfy the relatives of the dead woman and the police.

For the past year Muenter, his associates say, has delved in all the mysteries of ancient learning and occultism.

PUZZLED OVER ALCHEMY.

He had ransacked the Harvard Library for works extant on philosophy, ancient and modern; he had mastered all the works on alchemy, and was, in point of fact, engaged in writing a thesis on the insanity of German romantic literature at the time of his wife's death.

He was intimate with Kant and Schopenhauer, and he had made the works of the mad Nitzsche a special study. Who shall figure out the ideas that coursed through his mind as he toiled over his thesis by night, while the thoughts of his babe that was shortly to be born into the world, and of his wife, mingled with his philosophical speculations and jumbled with the bizarre characters of that German romantic literature, the insanity on which he was laboring to define.

It is the belief also of a theosophist sect that only by fire can the spirit be cleansed and rendered worthy to return whence it came. The body, this scholar teaches, is but the envelope in which the spirit is held for the short time that it moves upon the earth. To free the spirit the body must be consumed by fire, and not until the envelope, the shell, the clay mould, in which the spirit has been imprisoned is completely consumed by fire can he spirit effectually escape. Did Muenter hasten upon the cremation of his wife's body. He proposed to have it done here. He did, in fact, have the remains cremated as soon as the body reached Chicago.

As the strange, weird, uncanny circumstances of the case are considered the confection grows that it is one not for the coroner's court, but the alienists. What of the wonderful belief, which was pursued even to the point of murder recently, by Hierich, another scientist, who in the mad frenzy of insane science killed his son that he might demonstrate the theory that at the instant of death an adept may see the spirit of the departing being float forward. Will this mysterious Harvard case develop another such horror?

WHAT DID MUENTER GIVE HIS WIFE TO INDUCE SLEEP?

Just before I left to retire Mr. Muenter said that he thought his wife would rest well, as she had been given something to make her sleep. I did not ask him, but I suppose that the doctor had given her medicine.

I heard nothing of him afterwards until 8 o'clock the morning of the 16th, when I was awakened by Mr. Muenter tapping on the dining room floor.

"It's all over," he said.

"What?" I asked him.

"It's all over," he said again.

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"It's all over. My wife is dead," he said.

—Statement on death of Mrs. Muenter by Nurse Edith Chase, the State's most important witness.

Mrs. Muenter's body was cold and rigor mortis was present. I was surprised and asked him what time she died. He said he did not know, as she must have passed away quietly. I thought from the condition of the body that she must have been dead some time.

Planned Funeral Right Away.

"That morning Mr. Muenter said as soon as he had the death certificate signed he intended to have the funeral and to have the body cremated at Mount Auburn Afterward he told me that as it could not be done the next day he concluded to take the body to Chicago. He said he had meant to take the ashes there anyway.

"I took care of the children until Mr. Muenter was ready to start for Chicago.

"Had you at any time any suspicion that the young woman was being given poison?

"Why, no, of course I did not."

"What opportunities did Mr. Muenter have to give his wife food or drink without your knowledge?"

"Why, I suppose he had a good many. He was about the house a good deal of the time in the afternoon and evening, and he attended her when I was busy with the children or was sleeping."

"Do you remember of having seen anything about the house which might now seem to have been suspicious?"

"No, I do not."

"What was Mr. Muenter's attitude to ward his wife?"

"He appeared to be very kind and thoughtful. I thought he was very fond of her. Several times he was very anxious to call in doctors, and he did offer, though he genuined that he would not. How was no use, the morning he told you of his wife's death?"

Appeared Grief-Stricken.

"Why he acted rather nervous and got stricken, but I thought he was very much affected by his wife's death.

"Did he seem to be anxious to injure to preparations for the disposition of the body?"

"Yes, but it was because he was anxious to start as soon as possible for Chicago with the body.

"There is nothing I can say about Mr. Muenter," Mrs. Chase continued, "except that he seemed anxious always to do all he could for his wife. He wanted her to get stronger and he seemed happy when she was doing so well. When she had the trouble he was worried, and wanted to call doctors. During all the time I was there I saw nothing which now makes me think that Mr. Muenter acted strangely."

POLICE SEARCHING FOR POISON TRACE

A thorough canvass of all the drug stores in Cambridge has failed to reveal any person who can remember having sold arsenic to a man answering the description of Muenter. The search is being continued today in drug stores in other cities and towns. The police have taken a carboy of spring water which was in the house, and will have it analyzed. Mrs. Edith Chase, the Christian Scientist who attended Mrs. Muenter, said that she had seen Muenter give his wife water from this carboy.

THINK HE HAS KILLED HIMSELF.

District Attorney Sanderson yesterday told a reporter that he felt assured Judge Alvey would extend a warrant for Muenter's arrest.

Friends of Muenter still believe that he has taken his life.

Dispatches from Chicago report that Walter Krenke, brother of the dead woman, asserts that a former love affair in Germany may explain all.

He is reported as saying that German officials were looking for Professor Muenter, alleging that he had married in that country. He declares the German authorities have been pounding Muenter in his conscience and seeking to extradite him. Mrs. Max Gundlack of Chicago says that when Muenter returned with his wife from a visit to Germany in June, 1905, he was held up by immigration officers at Portland because of the allegations said to have been made by German officials.

Tried to Collect Insurance.

As to the motive concerning insurance it came to light yesterday in Chicago that Muenter made an effort to collect the $1,000 policy on his wife's life. He called on the Chicago solicitor of the New York Life Insurance Company and asked for the money. As the policy had been transferred to New York he was told he could not get the money in Chicago. He said he would go to New York to get it. The policies call for that city have been asked to watch for him.

Miss Bertha Muenter, the instructor's sister, reached Boston on an early train yesterday and hurried to the Muenter home in Cambridge and took charge. Her first act was to engage counsel for her brother. She told P. S. Bryant, the Harvard student who is living with the Muenters, that the professor was absolutely innocent of any connection with his wife's death.

She denied the insanity theory, asserting that when her brother arrived in Chicago with his wife's body he was in his usual and normal condition except for his grief over Mrs. Muenter's death.

She was met at her brother's home by police officers who had summoned her here to secure specimens of medicine and food before her arrival. These specimens will be analyzed. Miss Muenter declined to be interviewed by them.

Later in the day she moved into the quarters next door of Mrs. R. M. Derick, a woman who cared for the baby. Mrs. Muenter child on the trip to Chicago.

Miss Muenter was very much like insanity theory. They say Muenter was of a morbid temperament and made a study of mental disorders. He is working on a thesis entitled "Insanity in Romantic German Literature."

ANGRY BECAUSE CHILD A GIRL.

Another feature of yesterday's investigation was the statement of Muenter's friends that he was greatly disappointed that his second child was not a boy.

Bryant, a fellow student, went from one of Muenter's Cambridge friends to a number in Lawrence, Kan., reads:

"The friends of the Muenters pray for that their baby may be a boy, as they are afraid the young woman is being given poison."

"Why, no, of course I did not."

"What opportunities did Mr. Muenter have to give his wife food or drink without your knowledge?"

"Why, I suppose he had a good many. He was about the house a good deal of the time in the afternoon and evening, and he attended her when I was busy with the children or was sleeping."

"Do you remember of having seen anything about the house which might now seem to have been suspicious?"

Appeared Grief-Stricken.

"Why he acted rather nervous and got stricken, but I thought he was very much affected by his wife's death.

"Did he seem to be anxious to injure to preparations for the disposition of the body?"

"Yes, but it was because he was anxious to start as soon as possible for Chicago with the body.

"There is nothing I can say about Mr. Muenter," Mrs. Chase continued, "except that he seemed anxious always to do all he could for his wife. He wanted her to get stronger and he seemed happy when she was doing so well. When she had the trouble he was worried, and wanted to call doctors. During all the time I was there I saw nothing which now makes me think that Mr. Muenter acted strangely."

GRAPHIC STORY OF DEATH BY NURSE

The police to-day take a sworn statement from Mrs. Edith Chase, the Christian Scientist and nurse, who attended Mrs. Muenter up to six hours before she died. Her story reveals the history of the case and strengthens the belief of the police that Erich Muenter poisoned his wife, giving her small doses for a week before she died.

Mrs. Chase says that at midnight on April 15, the day before her death, Mrs. Muenter was resting comfortably and was better than she had been on the day before. At that hour Muenter asked the nurse to allow him to watch beside his wife until morning, and she consented. She took the baby and went to the front room, where she slept until six o'clock in the morning.

Then Muenter awakened her and said: "It is all over. My wife is dead."

Knew for Hours She Was Dead.

When Chase saw the body it was cold and rigor mortis had set in. This usually comes from two to six hours after death. This would tend to show that Muenter knew of her death for several hours at least before he called Mrs. Chase.

Speaking of her experience at the Muenter house, Mrs. Chase said:

"I went to Mr. Muenter's to nurse his wife about two weeks before her death. I was not supposed to treat Mrs. Muenter, as Mrs. Nickerson, the Christian Science healer, did that. I was merely to see that she had the proper nourishment and the atmosphere necessary.

"Mrs. Muenter was perfectly satisfied with the Christian Science treatment, and her husband promised that he would not have her take medicine. Mr. Muenter was not at all faithful a Christian Scientist as his wife was, for he broke his promise.

"He was dishonest before the baby was born. Several days before the birth of the little girl Mr. Muenter called Dr. H. B. McIntire. Dr. McIntire examined Mrs. Muenter and said she was doing very well, and there were no indications that the child would be born earlier than two weeks from that time.

No Physician at Birth.

"Dr. McIntire did not call again. When the child was born, Mr. Muenter and I were with the wife. No physician was called because Mrs. Muenter came out of it all right, and the child was strong and healthy. I took care of it, and the baby thrived.

"Mrs. Muenter seemed to be in a fair way to recover rapidly. She appeared to be gaining strength remarkably. She was bright and cheerful and Mr. Muenter was very well satisfied with the success of the treatment.

"He consulted the healer and made no suggestion that any physician be called, for there was no reason to doubt that both his wife and the baby would get along well. During that time I had met Mr. Muenter was very kind and thoughtful and no one would attend to his wife for hours while I rested.

"Every hour he could spare from his work at the college he was at home helping me and doing what he could for his wife. Mrs. Muenter gained every day until Monday, April 9.

"Mr. Muenter attended her part of that evening. Early in the evening my attention was called to Mrs. Muenter, for a sudden change had occurred. She complained of severe pains in the abdomen, and she vomited for a long time.

"She was quieted finally, but some time after midnight the trouble began again. She was given nourishment, and the next morning she seemed to be well again. She was soon she called me again and said she had excruciating pain and she vomited just as she had before.

"She did not have the trouble again that day, but she was rather weak. I did not undertake to treat her then for, but thought it might be well to give her something she had taken.

"Every day after that the same thing happened. Mrs. Muenter would suddenly complain of pains and vomit. Each time, though, I brought her around apparently all right. I could not understand it.

Muenter Seemed Alarmed.

"Mr. Muenter seemed to be very much alarmed, too. He wanted to call in physicians several times, but he did not do so, as his wife kept getting over each attack.

"On April 14 Mrs. Muenter had the same trouble, but this time it was worse than on any of the other days. She was very weak, because the nausea had exhausted her strength.

"That day Dr. Taylor was called by Mr. Muenter, but I do not think he did anything for the young woman, as I saw no medicines about.

"Sunday, the next day, Mrs. Muenter seemed to be doing well, though, of course, she felt the effects of the exhausting nausea. I went out for a walk that afternoon, as Mr. Muenter thought I needed some air.

"When I got back I found that Dr. Taylor had been there. Mrs. Muenter seemed to be comfortable and resting very well. Mr. Muenter was about the house, the whole evening, though I was in the room all the time with Mrs. Muenter and the baby.

"Mrs. Muenter's bed was in the room in the rear of the dining room. There was a crib for the baby, and I slept on a cot.

"About midnight Mr. Muenter told me I had better go to bed, and he would watch his wife during the night. I said I did not feel tired, but he said I must get some rest.

"Mr. Muenter said it was recess at the college, and he had nothing to do that day, so he could relieve me nights just as well. I looked at Mrs. Muenter, and she had seemed so well all evening that I thought it safe to leave him with her.

"I moved my cot and the baby's crib into the dining room, and went to bed.

Found Before I Left Me. Muenter said that he thought his wife would rest well, as she had been given something to make her sleep. I did not ask him, but I supposed that the doctor had given her some medicine.

"I heard nothing of him afterwards until 8 o'clock the morning of the 16th, when I was awakened by Mr. Muenter tapping on the dining room floor.

"'It's all over,' he said.

"'What?' I asked him.

"'It's all over,' he said again.

"'What do you mean?' I asked.

"'It's all over. My wife is dead,' he said.

TURKISH MYSTIC TELLS SOUL BELIEF

TEACHING the beliefs of the cult of which Professor Muenter is said to have been a student, "Professor Mahomet," Turk, Mohammedan, mystic and sorcerer, healer and preacher, whose office is at the Hotel Pelham, says to the BOSTON AMERICAN the following dissertation upon the soul and the body. "Professor Mahomet" is one of the foremost occultists in Boston, speaks a dozen languages, has traveled and studied, and what he has to say upon the beliefs of the mystics is received by students here as the utterance of one speaking with authority.

By Professor Mahomet.

THE human soul is like unto a light within a glass shade. Extinguish the light and there is darkness, although the shade remains. The light vanishes. The soul departs.

We read in ancient writings that the Peachiens cremated their king believing that only through the burning of his body with fire could the soul escape from it. But that is a writing of long ago. Of all the mystic sects there is none to-day which believes that the body must be cremated in order to release the soul. In every faith it is taught that the soul leaves the body at the moment of death.

The belief in the cremation usually tried with lower animals of putting them to death and witnessing the escape of the soul from the body is an old story. It was demonstrated a thousand years before Christ it has been demonstrated many times since.

Mumeon Ben Hukal, 134 years after Christ, during a dear illness, had his physicians in witness the departure of his soul. He spoke to them, declaring that they were about to witness the passing of life. No doubt that his soul was about to leave his body. Even as he spoke the moment the disciples saw his soul leap, as a bubble, from his body, and he became lifeless.

When Mahomet was about to die he pointed to his wife the direction his soul was to take, and with the passing of his last breath she saw the glimmer of his soul leaping upward.

Mahommedans, like the Egyptians, once had the firm belief that the body should be kept intact, that the soul might return to it at some future time. This is the case of the dwellers of ancient Egypt, and the reason for making the dead into mummies, which have defied the ravages of decay.

P. A. COLLINS' LIFE STORY IN BOOK FORM

Biography of the Late Mayor, From Pen of M. P. Curran, Given to Public.

The rugged honesty of the late Mayor Patrick A. Collins is strongly extolled in a biography of the late Mayor, written by his private secretary, M. P. Curran. It is the first story of Mayor Collins' life to look form since his death, and is entitled "Life of Patrick A. Collins, with some of his most notable public addresses."

It contains some 220 pages. Starting with his birth in Ballinafauna, County of Cork, Ireland, and with a description of the Collins family, Mr. Curran follows closely the steady climb of an ambitious man up the ladder of success.

The work is dedicated to Miss Marie Rose Collins, a daughter of the late Mayor. "Her unflagging interest and warm sympathy have been most helpful to me in my work," says the author.

In the foreword Mr. Curran, in defending Mr. Collins against statements of some of his contemporaries at the bar, that he was not a great lawyer, has spoken as follows:

Some of his contemporaries at the bar have contended, since his death, and with no apparent or suspected purpose to detract from his worth or high character as a public man, that he was not a great lawyer. They justify this contention by pointing to the fact that his political service diverted his attention from his legal practice, and handicapped him in the race for supremacy or eminence."

Of Loftiest Purpose.

Mr. Curran argued that his political service only added to his knowledge of State, National and international law. Continuing, he says: "A great lawyer should be a man well grounded in the principles of law; he should be a man of unswerving integrity, and a high sense of honor; he should be a man imbued with fairness, justice and loftiness of purpose."

All of this was Patrick A. Collins.

Mr. Curran has devoted one chapter to the very close relations that existed between Mr. Collins and Grover Cleveland, and to that part of the book has had inserted the following autograph letter from the late President:

"My Dear Mr. Curran:—

"I am glad that you have undertaken to write something in perpetuation of the noble and useful life of our friend, Patrick A. Collins. Those who knew him but slightly will look to the book you write for a portrayal of his honesty of purpose his intellectual gifts and his devotion to the duties of citizenship. But the many thousands who knew him well will think that you have sadly missed the mark if you fail to make prominent his simplicity, his spontaneous kindliness and his manly boldness.

"Yours very truly,

"GROVER CLEVELAND."

His Many Good Qualities.

In speaking of Mr. Collins' many good qualities Mr. Curran says: "Of all the qualities that distinguished him and made him most conspicuous, as he developed, the highest and most admirable was probably, which Shakespeare terms the richest jewel in man's crown, namely, honor. Honest in his dealings with his fellows, he was honored by them. Honest in dealing with his clients, he was morally honest; he was intellectually honest. Honesty was an attribute with him. It was woven into the very fibre of his nature."

The author tells of the following anecdote:

"When he was ten years of age he insisted on returning a dime that a Chelsea shopkeeper had given him in excess of what belonged to him as change. The man protested vigorously and indignantly that no mistake had been made in the transaction. He was lauding as a most important customer and disliked to be interrupted. 'Go 'way, little Paddy Collins,' he said, 'we make no mistakes here. You must have lost what is missing.'"

SAN FRANCISCO ASKS FEDERAL AID IN REBUILDING CITY

MAY APPEAL TO CONGRESS TO ACCEPT BONDS

$200,000,000 Too Much for Local Banks to Supply Unassisted.

CRITICIZE TAFT'S ACTION

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—At a meeting of prominent business and professional men held yesterday in the home of J. Downey Harvey, it was decided that an appeal will be made to the Federal Government to aid in the rebuilding of San Francisco. What form the appeal for aid will take is not definitely decided, but it is possible for Uncle Sam to accept municipal bonds for government deposit.

It is estimated that $200,000,000 worth of property was destroyed in the fire. This immense sum the banks of San Francisco cannot furnish. The government, by depositing its funds in local banks, can materially relieve the financial stress. Those who wish to rebuild can secure cash at low rates of interest, and any period of hard times that may now threaten will be averted.

Taft's Course Disappointing.

The action of Secretary of War Taft in expending all the funds appropriated by Congress for the relief of San Francisco without specifying the local bunco committee of his action also came up for discussion at the meeting. In plain language the committee feels distinctly slighted over the action of the Secretary. The members think it was not quite fair to them to announce that $2,500,000 had been appropriated, to permit the local to think this sum would be transferred to them and then at the eleventh hour turn the committee down. Every one of the committee was incurring heavy obligations for the welfare of the sufferers to stop them in the face with the statement that all money excepting $200,000 had found its way into the pockets of army contractors.

The city is still in need of financial assistance from the outside world. James D. Phelan, chairman of the Municipal Finance committee, issued this statement:

"The demands of the finance committee are very great, and I do not see how we can meet them if the conditions continue. There is no money in circulation. The banks are closed because they dare not open their vaults, and when they do open them they probably will pay out solely as they realize upon their assets.

Seek Help for Destitute.

"They expect next week to cash the checks of well-known customers to the amount of $500 each. That measure will help in a small degree the resumption of business.

"There is sufficient food supply in sight for the present, but the great problem for us is how to provide for the absolutely destitute, for the sick, the old, the children and all other dependent persons.

"The means of support of the hospitals, orphanages, religious and charitable associations are absolutely cut off. The local Red Cross estimates $1,000 a day is necessary for the hospitals.

"To set these institutions on their feet will be the work of years, because the local people are unequal to the task of supporting them and at the same time meeting the demands of their own households and business, the necessary rebuilding of stores and homes and ordinary taxation for public purposes.

"Everybody is hopeful and courageous, and the prosperous communities of the United States we are sure will answer our call for help. Their spontaneous and generous aid has deeply touched the hearts of our people."

Vaults Escape Fire.

City officers will be elated to find the contents of the municipal treasury intact. The vaults were in a part of the City Hall that escaped the fire. An expert opened the doors and found gold, silver and securities scattered over the floor, but safe and unharmed. The vault contained $5,500,000 in currency, $300,000 in securities of the German Savings bank and $12,000,000 of unsold city bonds.

It has developed that only two regiments of troops, comprising in all about 1,350 men, will be sent to San Francisco to reinforce those now here, instead of the 2,500 men, as originally proposed by General Greely and sanctioned by the War Department. The troops to go are the First Cavalry from Fort Clark and Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and the infantry regiment from Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming. A telegram asking that only the reduced number be sent was sent to the War Department and orders to that effect were promptly issued.

The transportation charge for the men probably would have aggregated more than $100,000, which can be spent in buying rations and other necessities.

LABOR FAMINE FOLLOWS FLIGHT OF WORKINGMEN

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—The labor famine is becoming more acute every day. The officials of the Southern Pacific say they have carried 50,000 persons to points east of Ogden, while as many more fled north and south along the coast. Del McCarthy, head of the trades council, says that at least 50,000 laboring men have left the city, probably never to return.

POLICE FIRE ON MOB CARRYING OFF LOOT IN CITY RUINS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—Every ferryboat that reached the docks yesterday bore crowds of people intent upon securing from the ruins of thousands of buildings some relic of the fearful calamity. The majority of these people would not be satisfied with one single memento of the occurrence, but they came along with them huge baskets with which to transport the loot they expected to find.

Chief of Police Dinan had previously ordered that all persons carrying away material from any building should be stopped and questioned. He further ordered that any persons found searching in the ruins should be summarily halted, and in the event of their not ceasing at the command of the officers they should be shot down. While the police did the best they could to prevent the wrecking of the cellars beneath the buildings which contained much valuable material, their efforts were unavailing. People swarmed over the spots where valuable loot was to be expected. In Chinatown a posse of ten officers, especially appointed, did their best to keep the curio hunters out of the ruins in more than a dozen instances it was necessary for the specials to fire into the crowd to scatter them.

Sergeant Ross of the Harbor precinct and a score of policemen held up nearly a hundred people who were making across the bay with the loot they had gathered. It is estimated that the looters have already taken $100,000 worth of valuables out of Chinatown.

METHODIST MAINE CONFERENCE OVER

CHARGE MAN WITH ROBBING ACTRESSES

The local police allege that Benjamin Walker, under arrest at Newport for the alleged larceny of jewelry from the private car of Annie Russell, the actress, is the same man who stole a valuable silk coat and other ladies' garments from the trunk of Mrs. Madge Carr Cook of the "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" company. Yesterday they recovered in a South End pawnshop the stolen clothing, which had been pawned under the name of Walker.

MAYOR LEADS MARCH AT HARMONY DANCES

The annual ball of the Harmony Associates of the North End will take place to-night in Roughan Hall, City square, Charlestown. Elaborate preparations have been made for this occasion, and it is anticipated that the affair will surpass any of those previously held. The grand march will be led by Mayor John F. Fitzgerald and Mrs. James T. Purcell and half a hundred others. The floor will be in charge of President James T. Purcell, assisted by Dennis Canny, Frank Repetto, Howard Nelson and Patrick J. Cavanaugh.

CATHOLICS HOPE TO RAISE $75,000 FOR MGR. RIORDAN

In the Catholic churches of the Boston archdiocese, a collection will be taken up at all the masses next Sunday for Archbishop Riordan of San Francisco, whose church property has been seriously damaged and in many cases totally wrecked.

There were many collections taken up in the churches yesterday, but these were individual, and probably intended for the general fund, as had been the case the week previous. The collection announced for next Sunday, however, is general, and is by the order of Archbishop Williams.

It was the opinion of many of the pastors seen yesterday that this collection will probably be the largest ever taken up for any cause in the Boston archdiocese. An ordinary collection in the archdiocese for some annual donation amounts to $15,000. Basing their estimate on this, some well-known pastors said yesterday that the collection will probably reach $75,000.

MILLIONAIRES SEEK RUINS

NEW YORK, April 30.—Twenty-two millionaire residents of San Francisco in Europe, arrived here yesterday on the St. Louis on their way to 'Frisco to see what was left of their property.

Wireless messages were sent ashore by every ship with which the St. Louis came in touch. When letters and telegrams were opened while coming up the bay, and after the steamer docked, many shed tears of joy. George A. Newhall, former police commissioner, for five years president of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of the firm of H. M. Newhall & Co., received a wireless telegram Wednesday telling that the Newhall Building had been swept away, but that the members of his family were all right and had moved his business to his residence.

WOMEN SHINE SHOES TO AID

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The parlors of the All Souls Unitarian Church have been turned into shoe polishing stands, with the ladies of the congregation as bootblacks, for the benefit of the Frisco fund. About twenty-five of them were thus occupied at the parlors of the church three days last week, and their receipts averaged more than $100 a day. Many of the ladies thus engaged are prominent in society.

the leading Company of the United States will, after paying its losses of $2,000,000 in San Francisco, have a surplus of over $7,000,000 in addition to its capital of $3,000,000 with its reinsurance reserve of $7,500,000 to pay all further losses that may occur. Keep this in mind.

Important to Eastern Business Concerns

The San Francisco Examiner has been published daily since the recent earthquake. Eastern business concerns desiring to make announcements to their customers in San Francisco will be able to do so through the advertising columns of the Examiner. This method will be found more satisfactory than either writing or wiring, owing to the necessary delay in delivery at San Francisco.

Announcements will be telegraphed to the San Francisco Examiner free of charge.

Everybody reads the Examiner in San Francisco.

Guaranteed circulation over 100,000 daily.

Advertising rates, 20 cents per agate line daily, 25 cents per line Sundays.

HELP THE FOURTH AMERICAN RELIEF TRAIN LEAVE TO-DAY

Augusta, Me., Newsboy, Who Gave Half o' Profits to Fund

Special to the Boston American.

AUGUSTA, Me., April 30.—Wishing to add his mite to the fund that is being raised for the benefit of the sufferers in San Francisco, eight-year-old Lewis Mayo, the champion BOSTON AMERICAN newsboy here, has contributed half of a day's profits on his sales of the paper, amounting to fourteen cents.

"I see that the newsboys in Boston are giving 10 per cent., and I think I can afford to do better than that," he said, "I'll give half of what I make."

Rush Contributions — Express Companies Will Deliver Them Free—24 Hours' Delay if Train Is Not Ready at 3 o'clock.

Hustle in your donations for the fourth BOSTON AMERICAN and Salvation Army relief train, if contributions enough arrive in time, the train will start from the North Station at 3 p. m. to-day. It means a delay of twenty-four hours if the train is not ready at 3 o'clock.

Canned goods, clothing and household furniture and medicines are the most useful articles that can be sent. The 300,000 homeless people in San Francisco will need everything that Bostonians and the people of all New England can send to them.

The BOSTON AMERICAN will see to it that all contributions are forwarded to the needy people of the devasted city. Headquarters for the work are organized at both ends of the rail, in Boston and in San Francisco.

The Boston end of the work is under the direct supervision of the CITY EDITOR of this newspaper and of Colonel Evans of the Salvation Army, who are working in connection.

At all the branches of the Salvation Army in and around Boston goods will be received and forwarded to the BOSTON AMERICAN and Salvation Army relief train.

At Shed No. 10 of the Fitchburg Division of the Boston & Maine railroad, Captain Redstone receives contributions for the Salvation Army at Dowes Nos. 6 and 7, and two reporters of the BOSTON AMERICAN are there to help.

If you have a contribution, any express company in your neighborhood will deliver it, free, to the train.

Record speed between Boston and San Francisco is looked for by the officials of the Boston & Maine railroad, who have arranged for the right of way for these relief trains over all connections. Train No. 3 is being rushed over the Fitchburg, Fort into Chicago. From Chicago to San Francisco the train will operate over the Overland of the Sante Fe road all the way into San Francisco.

Freight Agents Berry and La More of the Boston & Maine railroad are handling the relief train at the North Station.

Three two men deserve much credit for the dispatch with which they have started the BOSTON AMERICAN and Salvation Army relief trains across the continent.

To avoid misdirection of your contributions and other delays be careful that you address whatever you send as follows:

For the
San Francisco Sufferers,
Via Boston American Relief Train,
Fitchburg Div., B. & M. R. R.
Boston, Mass.
Deliver at Freight Depot No. 10, Doors 6 and 7, Warren Bridge.

The sensible enthusiasm of the contributors to this relief is shown in the gifts.

A ton of crackers was sent by the Educator Food Company. This will supply an immediate need.

Page & Baker, of No. 34 Fulton street, sent a wagon load of furniture. This contribution will help in restoring the homeless who are sleeping in huts.

W. F. B. Brooks & Co., No. 194 Hanover street, have given notice that they will contribute a wagon load of furniture.

A large case of boots has been given by H. H. Wood & Co., of Laconia, N. H.

Nores Brothers, the men's outfitters, have sent in a shipping case full of men's furnishings.

The New York Mattress Company, No. 27 Beverly street, gave two mattresses to help out. This was a useful contribution.

FIRST CAR OF RELIEF SUPPLIES TO REACH SAN FRANCISCO ON AN EASTERN ORDER

PHOTOGRAPH BY A. C. KAUFMAN, NO. 921 EIGHTH STREET, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Photograph of a carload of goods sent to San Francisco from Sacramento through the Charles P. Nathan Company by order of W. C. Lawrence of Chicago, the order for the goods being given for Hearst's Boston American Relief Fund. This carload or supplies, valued at $7,500, arrived in San Francisco on April 21, the first consignment of relief goods to reach the stricken city on an Eastern order. In an early edition of this paper it was erroneously stated that this car was one of the cars sent from Boston by the BOSTON AMERICAN relief movement.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

Tilelayers' Helpers' Union will give the employers one day to sign the new scale. Some weeks ago the union sent a request to the employers for a minimum rate of $2.00 a day for the first five days of the week and $1.50 for four hours on Saturdays.

At a special meeting yesterday it was reported that no definite answer had as yet been received from the employers. With 99 per cent. of the of the trade present, it was decided unanimously that special committees call on each employer to-day and that a special meeting of the union be held to-night at No. 45 Eliot street to take decisive action against every firm which does not sign at once.

TO GIVE AT LEAST $15,000.

Peter W. Collins, international secretary-treasurer of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers' Unions, who will be in this city for the next few days, will speak at the meeting of Union No. 104 in Paine Memorial Building tomorrow night, before Union No. 102 in Wells Memorial Wednesday night and at Thursday night's meeting of Union No. 103, Insider Telephone men.

Mr. Collins is confident that at least $15,000 may possibly be raised in this city for the union electrical workers of San Francisco. The International will also probably send a representative to San Francisco to take charge of affairs for local members.

101 NEW MEMBERS.

One hundred and one members were admitted at last night's special meeting of Bond and Tie Carriers' Union No. 101 in Wells Memorial Building. It was voted that hereafter the union hold its regular meetings on the second and fourth Sunday afternoons of each month in Machinists' Hall, Wells Memorial Building. It has been for years on Sunday nights.

The union decided to organize a union ball nine, and the shoes of Teamsters' Union No. 25 and Cigarmakers' Union No. 97 were sent challenges.

TEAMSTERS GIVE $5,000.

Cornelius P. Shea, international president of the Teamsters' Brotherhood, yesterday received the telegraphic vote of the executive board members unanimously approving the sending of $5,000 at once to San Francisco for the relief of union teamsters. He at once signed the draft and telegraphed the money from this city.

LABOR NOTES.

Boston Women's Label League has called a special meeting for to-morrow night at No. 184 Boylston street.

Brass Workers' Union No. 55 will give an entertainment and ball in Paine Memorial Wednesday night.

Patternmakers' executive board last night called a special meeting of the association for Wednesday night to solicit funds for relief of the San Francisco members.

Several members and friends attended the formal opening of the headquarters of the Italian Workers' Federation, No. 3 Bennet street, at No. 144 North street yesterday.

All the officers of the union yesterday distributed the new union buttons at the teamsters' office. Every member will be given one and a half circle, half red and half white, with the lettering in blue.

The Boston Central Labor Union executive board has ordered the regular meeting of the union to be held in the Legislature's this week, and also directed secretary Mahoney to send letters to that effect to the unions in Boston.

There will be a mass meeting in Paine Memorial Hall to-night to be addressed by Charles Howard, president of the Typographical Union, Frank Walsh of the Federation of Labor and Edward P. Moxley, of the Allied Printing Trades Council and others.

ARCHBISHOP WILL SEE MAYPOLE DANCE

Archbishop O'Connell and Mayor John F. Fitzgerald will be the guests at the reunion of the members of the Cathedral parish in Mechanics building to-night. Children of the parish will give a pretty Maypole dance. A band concert and dancing will be other features of the evening.

"PATIENCE" TO BE SUNG FOR HOME

The Bostonia Home Society will give the Gilbert and Sullivan opera of "Patience," in Jordan Hall Tuesday and Wednesday evenings for the benefit of the Bostonia Home for Women.

STERNBERG LEASES HOME IN BEVERLY

Baron Speck von Sternberg, the German ambassador to the United States, will make his summer home at Beverly Farms this year, having leased a place there. He is planning to spend as much of the time there as his official duties will permit. Mrs. Langham, mother of the baroness, will probably arrive here early in May, and will spend July and August with the ambassador and her daughter.

E. BOSTON CHURCH REUNION

A reunion of the present and former members of the Church of Our Lady of the Assumption, East Boston, will be held in Lyceum Hall to-night.

SANG NATIONAL AIRS WHILE CITY BURNED

Former Boston Man Gives Vivid Description of Suffering in Frisco Fire.

Professor Walter Bush, a former Harvard man, who went through the trying scenes in San Francisco, writes to friends telling vividly of the great work of destruction and the intense suffering of the 300,000 homeless people there. He was a principal of one of the high schools that was destroyed.

He was shaken out of bed by the first shock, but thinking the trouble was past went to sleep again. He knew nothing of the great fire till he woke the next morning. After telling how he snatched up a few clothes as he saw the flames approaching, he says:

"I went down town to my old stamping ground. In Union Square Park I found a wrecked piano. A pianist, who looked like a grimy hobo, but whom I had seen at the St. Francis Grill, was playing and singing, while others joined in the 'Star Spangled Banner' and other national airs.

"I climbed up Nob Hill and, as I saw the great sea of flames licking up the homes on the slopes of beautiful Russian Hill, I became sick at my stomach. I thought of Dante and his 'Inferno.' The fiend was relentless. He disappeared behind a hill for a time and his red cry appeared again with a hideous roar from behind another at some other point of the compass. He traveled leisurely, but grimly.

"I slept cold in the house to which I escaped. What women or invalids must have suffered under the flimsy tents exposed to the sea winds and fogs, God only knows.

"The fine equipages of the rich were filled with richly dressed dowagers, obliged to sit up all night in their cramped quarters.

"Our here no water is to be had. We go blocks to get a pitcher full from a distributing faucet, surrounded by scores awaiting their turn. It is forty days since I have washed my hands or face. Water is only to be had for drinking and cooking.

"Last night I lit a candle for a moment when there was an uproar at the door and in marched a centry with gun across his chest, who ordered the candle extinguished. I did so, and later in the dark knocked over a jar of precious water.

NOTHING TO EAT, SAYS CHINAMAN

The letter printed below was received by a prominent Chinese merchant of this city from his brother-in-law, who was a student in the stricken city at the time of the earthquake.

The young man's father had a flourishing business in San Francisco and all his belongings were wiped out by the fire. The family is one of the best among the Chinese and all are well educated.

Here is the letter:

Everything to our name is burned. Nowhere to live and nothing to eat. We are starving. We are now on the street in front of No. 1044 Fifty-eighth street. There is mother, sister and little sister living nothing to wear and nothing to eat. Oh, this is terrible. God help us that we may not die this night. Oh, Merciful mother and the little ones are suffering. We have to beg to keep from dying, with no one to beg from. Oh, God, this is terrible. This is a terrible calamity and may be the end of us all. From

Your Loving Brother,

ALL VERMONT MASONS TO GIVE TO FUND

BURLINGTON, Vt., April 30.—Every Masonic lodge in Vermont will contribute funds for the relief of San Francisco sufferers. Grand Master W. E. Bingee has sent a circular to every lodge asking for contributions. The idea is to have each lodge contribute twenty-five cents for each member, and as there are over 30,000 Masons in the State, a good-sized sum will be realized. In addition to this fund, all Masonic bodies of higher degree have contributed.

BLANK CARDS FOR TICKETS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 30.—The rapidity with which the railroads leading out of San Francisco, with their eastern connections, have facilitated the movement of refugees from the stricken city, was exemplified yesterday by a party of men and women who called at the offices of the AMERICAN.

A feature of the forwarding of passengers from Oakland eastward is that no special tickets or passes have been issued. Instead, blank cards have been used by the generous passenger departments to send the goods of homeless sufferers across the continent.

Edward Shepard, a solicitor for a San Francisco concern, stated yesterday that he came from Oakland to New York on three cards.

No matter what the druggist says, take only Father John's Medicine. Remember its impressive indorsements and fifty years of success as a tonic and body builder.

Father John's Medicine prevents Pneumonia and Consumption, and cures all Throat and Lung Troubles. No alcohol or poisonous drugs. Cures colds or money back.

If your druggist does not have it send $1 for a large bottle, express prepaid, to Father John's Medicine, Lowell, Mass.

"Where a Man's Treasure Is There Will His Heart Be Also."

If you had all the money which you had accumulated in your lifetime placed in a certain bank, that bank would be bound to receive from you such careful attention as you could give to preserve its stability, no matter how "crooked" its methods might be.

That is the way it is with the Senate at Washington. It is made up of men of wealth, and their wealth is invested in what is commonly termed THE INTERESTS. While the people of the United States elect their Senators to their high office through the various State Legislatures, nevertheless they feel that where their treasure is there their heart is also. After the manner of most men, they seek their own ends, and their own ends lie in the direction which "the interests" dictate.

Says David Graham Phillips, in "THE TREASON OF THE SENATE, in MAY COSMOPOLITAN.

"It is impossible the Senate, look, not at its professions, not at the surface pretenses of the measures, it permits to become laws, but at the effect of those laws—how ministering and slander thrive under them, and to understand why the laws always somehow fail to serve the people, always somehow subserve the people's enemies, look at Aldrich and Gorman and their band—how they got, how they keep their seats, whom they associate with; their private fortunes, how their fortunes are invested."

The Senators of the United States and THE INTERESTS for their own interest, but as officers of our national legislative body are they the right men in the right place?

EUROPEAN TOUR ELECTION

TEACHERS' CONTEST IN "HOME STRETCH"

VOTES ON AMERICAN'S PRIZE TOURS AND INCREASE AS LAST HALF OPENS.

The race for the forty prize European Tours to be awarded the most popular New England school teachers by the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN is now entering the home stretch.

The election is now more than half over, and with the opening of the last period the enthusiasm and determination of the friends of the teacher candidates have increased.

Letters come to the European Tour Editor by the score daily bearing good cheer for the favorite teachers from their loyal supporters.

A good sample of these letters, few of which can be published for lack of space, was that which accompanied the record-breaking vote cast for Mrs. Nellie P. Biddiman through Special Ballots signed by pupils and teachers of the Worcester South High School.

This eloquent letter, which is only one of thousands received during the last few days, follows:

Office of South High School, Edward M. Woodward, Principal.

Worcester, April 27, 1906.

European Tour Editor, BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Dear Sir—We, pupils of Nellie B. Biddiman of the South High School, Worcester, Mass., want to express in the strongest possible way our deserving place in the European trip the BOSTON AMERICAN is to give.

School life is a little world of its own. It has its own government, its rulers and many subjects, and, as in every other life, there are favorites. In this kingdom of school life our favorite is Nellie B. Biddiman, a teacher who never had the ill will of any pupil, and who is always ready to guide, help and encourage all.

Now it is our turn to help her and show our appreciation of past favors by adding her to win the contest which this paper has so generously offered to teachers.

Under separate cover find enclosed two subscriptions to make her 100,000 votes nearer success; also find our principal's check for $1.50.

Trusting that everyone who reads this paper and has a few votes to spare will contribute toward her support, we remain, sincerely yours,

HIGH PUPILS.

South High School.

P.S.—Forty prize tours will be awarded as follows, apportioned to four divisions of New England on the basis of the number of readers of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN and the number of school teachers in each locality: Twenty to teachers in Boston and the surrounding cities composing the Metropolitan District; ten to teachers of Massachusetts outside of Boston; six to teachers of Rhode Island and Connecticut, and four to teachers of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

There are ten "Grand Tours" of sixty-six days, ten "European Tours" of forty-five days, and twenty "Shakespearean Tours of thirty-three days.

In addition to the tours, cash prizes amounting to $1,000 will be awarded to the six teachers having the highest individual votes, irrespective of locality. The six prizes are: $500, $200, $150, $75, $50 and $25.

CANDIDATES AND THEIR STANDING

Following is the list of teachers having 10,000 or more votes in the European Tour Election. Record is kept of the names and votes of all teachers still unpublished.

The list is arranged to show which teachers would be winners of the forty tours if the contest ended to-day. The winners of the $1,000 would be the six teachers having the highest votes, regardless of the division in which they are located.

The candidates and their vote up to noon yesterday follow:

SHIP MIXES UP WITH DERELICT

The steamer Taff, which came in from Cuba yesterday with a cargo of bananas, narrowly escaped wreck about a week ago and for a time the officers though they were on a rock thrust up in mid ocean by the recent earthquake disturbances.

While the Taff was steaming northward at full speed she suddenly stopped, throwing men to the deck and causing general alarm. The engines would not work, and for a long time the steamer lay there.

In a final attempt the propeller began to revolve, and the Taff got under way. Examination showed that the steamer had run down a submerged wreck, and Lee top of the mast and some rigging had got tangled with the propeller.

WILLIAMS PLAY AT HARVARD

The Williams College Dramatic Club will give "The Man From Mexico" in the Fay Theatre at Harvard on Wednesday, May 1.

GERMANY SEEKS ROOSEVELT CUP

Commander Hans G. Helbinghaus of the German navy, who is now at Marblehead, announced to-day that the Crown Prince is having a yacht built to race in this country next September for the Roosevelt Cup. The contests will be held off Marblehead, Mass., and three boats will represent Germany, and three this country. Commander Helbinghaus represents Emperor Wilhom on all yachting matters and arranged the details for the trans-Atlantic race last May for the Kaiser's cup. He conferred to-day with the Eastern Yacht Club officials, under whose auspices the coming contests will be held, and made final arrangements for the international struggle.

WOMAN STRUCK, MAN KILLED BY LIGHTNING

ERIE, Pa., April 30.—John Peters, aged 18, a junior student at Edinboro Street School, was struck and instantly killed by lightning Sunday afternoon. His sister Margaret, also a student at the school, who was strolling through the fields with him, was knocked down by the shock and severely injured.

GIVE HARVARD CONVICT'S BODY

The body of Joseph Parradis, who died April 25 at the Charlestown prison, will be given to the Harvard Medical College.

Parradis was 33 years of age when sentenced to prison in February, 1896, to serve a sentence of not less than twelve nor more than sixteen years. During the 10½ years that he was an inmate of the institution not a single person visited him. He was committed for breaking and entering from the Middlesex Superior Criminal Court at Cambridge. He was born in Canada.

All efforts to find any relative or friends who knew Parradis have so far proved unavailing. The requirements in such a case are that the body shall be turned over by the prison authorities to some medical institution for scientific purposes.

GOV. COBB, OF MAINE IS BETTER

Much improvement is reported in the condition of Gov. Cobb of Maine, who is confined at the Hotel Lenox with a bad attack of grippe. He is expected to be out to-morrow.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Jimmy Collins's Boston Puglins are here for two games. The last time they were seen locally the Boston team did not get a look in, and Manager Clarke Griffith is determined that the same state of affairs will prevail in the present short series.

Manager Collins is greatly pleased with the showing made by his men on the present trip. He is particularly pleased with the work of Myron Grimshaw at first base. The former Buffalo player is showing a dogged disposition to clout the ball these days, and is also playing a great fielding game.

The Boston pitchers are slow rounding into form, and with a week or so of good warm weather all the club artists will be in top-notch shape.

The Garrison finish against the Athletics Saturday has done a world of good in stimulating confidence among the Hub players, who were rather discouraged at the results of the recent games with the New Yorkers.

The Boston players arrived here early this morning, having remained in Quakertown over Sunday. Every man is fine and fit and ready to play the game of his life.

Jesse Tannehill, the mighty southpaw, is carded to pitch for the Bostons to-day. He has yet to lose a game.

Griffith may send in Cheshire to stall the Bostons, who seem unable to get started to pull out a victory in today's battle. "Long" got his bumps against the Washingtons and is anxious to show his manager that he is just as strong as ever in the box.

The Bostons are now about three games behind the Clevelands, who are leading the race, and Manager Collins is confident of appearing well in the front before the present week is ended.

The Bostons leave this city Tuesday night and go home for a series of four games with the Senators. After that the Bostons will meet the Philadelphias and all the Western clubs.

TOMMY BURNS IS ON HIS WAY EAST TO FIGHT LANKY BOB AT O'ROURKE'S CLUB

NEW YORK, April 30.—Tommy Burns is on his way!

The husky fighter, who faced Marvin Hart in Los Angeles, left the earth yanks some yesterday. New York Tickets were forwarded him by Manager Tom O'Rourke of the Pendennis Club at Essington and Burns will go to O'Brien's place against Bob Fitzsimmons at the same arena across the Delaware.

This means exit Mr. O'Brien for fair, and enter Mr. Burns.

The ring history which will go to both Fitzsimmons and his opponent will not be counted on the right side of the O'Brien bank account. Jack lost out by trying to hold up

Burns is expected in New York within the next six or seven days. He is likely to tarry over in Detroit to show his good clothes and order his valet around. When Burns played his last Detroit engagement he carried his belongings in a hat box, and didn't know the difference between a pair of silk pajamas and the mean temperature of the Arctic.

But it is a different Tommy now. The Boer has acquired a few more coin the ways large bank rolls which have come his way have been judiciously invested in clothes and trunks, and the Metropole will have to lay aside the royal suite when Tommy floats into town.

But aside from all this there is going to be one wildest scrap when the Detroit cyclone jumps into the ropes with Fitzsimmons. Burns is game and willing. He weighs only 175 pounds. Had he not been a game man he would never have faced Marvin Hart, who weighed 205. Had he not been willing he never would have carried the fight to Hart for the entire twenty rounds, and finally defeated Marvin.

When Burns goes into New York he will be taken in tow by Tom O'Rourke and furnished with all that is good in training quarters.

GAMES YESTERDAY.

At Brooklyn: Brooklyn 2, Philadelphia 0.
At New York: New York 5, Boston 4.
At Cincinnati: Cincinnati 11, Pittsburg 6.

GAMES SCHEDULED TO-DAY.

New York at Brooklyn.
Pittsburg at Cincinnati.
Chicago at St. Louis.

With the world's champions are here. They are quartered at the Copley Square Hotel, where they will stay until they leave for home, accompanied by the Boston National Club, on Friday night.

The Giants have a string of five games to play in this city, and there should be some great baseball contests seen at the South End grounds before they quit the city.

The New Yorks have a commanding lead in the National League race at the present time, and although it is too early to pick a winner judging by their present form they should capture their third consecutive pennant this season.

The New Yorkers have their full quota of men with them, with the exception of Christy Mathewson, and every man of them is all in right for a big engagement.

Mathewson has been ill recently, but has completely recovered. He remained home in New York, and Manager McGraw figured that he could get along without his services until the team leaves for his opening Western trip.

This afternoon's game will probably see Leon Ames in the box for the visitors, with Pfeffer, the college star, on the firing line for the home club.

ATHLETICS LOSE GAME.

NEW YORK, April 30.—The New York and Philadelphia American League teams played an exhibition game on the Washington Heights grounds and the local men won by the score of 11 to 3. This was the first Sunday game ever played between big league teams on Manhattan Island. It was sanctioned by Mayor McClellan on account of the purpose for which it was arranged. The entire receipts, amounting to $8,532, were donated by the management to the San Francisco relief fund.

BRIGGS AND NEARY CLASH AT CHELSEA TONIGHT

A pair of the very finest scrappers will face each other at the Lincoln A. C. to-night, as Charley Neary, the German blacker, and Jimmy Briggs are to have it out, and their style is the same, give and take till one or the other caves in.

Both are fine granite in physical structure, and a wallop makes about as much impression when it lands on their bodies.

There will be no fancy sparring when they get in the ring, but slam-bang all the way, and they are not in the habit of missing anything when they let fly.

It is the straight rushes for them, where they pummell away without any return or order to break from the referee. For boys of their weight there are none who can hit harder, and the bout is likely to develop into a hammering fest, with the award going against the one first losing the least bit of steam.

There is no one who wants to pick the winner, although the edge is all in favor of the visitor, who has two six-round decisions on Briggs out in Milwaukee. But those who saw Jimmy with Deshler have plenty of confidence that the Chelsea blacksmith was never in a better call than he is at present, and it would take a fine article of a boxer to best him.

Neary has made an excellent impression since he came to the Hub a week ago, as he has given every evidence that he has the goods with him and can mark any boy in his class travel. He is sure to be rewarded all the encouragement that non sliders usually get, as the Hub fans never perform when an aspirant himself credibly.

If Neary can defeat Briggs his fame will receive a great boost in his direction, and he will be much sought after. The winner will be a great card for the future, and both boys know it and will fight to their limits.

The curtain raiser between Frank Adams of Boston and Harry Gilman of Rockland should be a lively tilt, as the pair are well matched in every way.

Terry Gaines is to figure in the semi-final, and Billy Payne, the Philadelphian, is to try conclusions with him.

Principal Bouts Carded This Week

TO-NIGHT.

Charley Neary vs. Jimmy Briggs, Lincoln A. C., Chelsea.
Frankie Baldwin vs. Jack Lennon, New Boston.

TUESDAY.

Young Cole vs. Kid Cudby, Hanover, at Lynn.
Willie Connell vs. Jack Downey, Bridgeport.

THURSDAY.

Kid Digby vs. Young Kenney, Lincoln A. C., Chelsea.
Jimmy Duffy vs. Mike Schreck, New York.
Jimmy Hanlon vs. Monk the Newsboy, Boston.

FRIDAY.

Kid Hessel vs. Joe Nelson, Lowell.
Abe Attell vs. Frankie Neil, Los Angeles.

The opening wedge to have bigger and better boxing bouts in New York will be driven at Madison Square Garden Thursday night, when Mike Schreck and Marvin Hart will appear in a four-round bout. If the promoters get away with the show without being interfered with by the authorities they will gradually increase the length of the contests. Hart is probably in fair condition, but Schreck will no doubt appear in the ring in the condition he was at Chelsea, and unless the bout is pretty fast it will end quickly.

Kid Panzi and Young Kenney of Lowell are booked for the feature bout at the Lincoln Club Tuesday night. Panzi is one of the coming of Kenney and Panzi at the Hub theatre recently might have been a friendly bout, and not for the referee one of them would have won a decisive victory.

When they returned to their dressing room they had a body-guard, and both being eager for another meeting the matchmaker of the Lincoln Club marked them for a fifteen-round bout Thursday night. There will be two preliminaries.

Jimmy Hanlon and Monk the newsboy also put up such a slashing fight at the recent Club, Brockton, a week ago, will meet again at the same club Thursday night. There will also be three preliminary bouts.

Kid Hessel, Lincoln A. Thursday has a certain boat for numerous fight. Arthur Cote of Maine and Kid Cudby of Nashua, clever scrapping fighters, are to box, and they will surely give satisfaction.

Joey Calahan has matched Joe Nelson and Kid Hessel of Providence for the Saturday night, to box twelve rounds.

Jimmy Duffy and Young Cole of Lowell, to-night, to box twelve rounds.

RINDGE VS. MALDEN.

Rindge Manual Training School will meet Malden High to-day in a baseball game in the Intercollegiate Athletic League at Malden.

MIKE 'TWIN' IS AFTER SCALP OF THE DANE

Mike "Twin" Sullivan, who with his brother Jack, was one of the principal attractions at the monster benefit at the Hub Theatre Saturday night last, intends to rest for five or six weeks before he does any more work in the ropeil arena.

Sullivan would prefer a battle with Battling Nelson. He says that he feels confident that he could make short work of the Dane.

Mike will post $1,000 to real live cash to bind a match with Nelson. Furthermore, he says he will make 133 pounds, 3 o'clock, for the lightweight scrapper.

Sullivan says that the knockout at the hands of Joe Gans did not hurt him a particle and that he would meet the same boxer every day in the week if there was enough money in sight.

N. E. LEAGUE GAMES TODAY.

WILSON LIKES OLD STYLE OF HORSE RACING

Secretary Horace Wilson of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association is a strong advocate of the old-fashioned method of two-in-three and three-in-five heat racing.

Before announcing the programme of the meeting next October at Lexington, he was in correspondence with the most prominent horsemen throughout the country. Those all intending to send a stable along the entire line this year the old way of racing was approved.

In order to show just how the racing at Lexington came out under the old plan, Mr. Wilson has been doing a little figuring. In the past three years his association has given 104 races, requiring 253 heats, an average of a fraction over three heats to a race. Out of the entire number of races only five required five heats to find the winner.

Despite New Rules, Yale Men Think

FOOTBALL STILL ROUGH

NEW HAVEN, April 30.—Captain Sanders Moore of the Yale football eleven has enacted two unique innovations in the spring practice. He has made a good share of the work the past week secret, and some scrimmaging has been tried. The Yale coaches have made some discoveries about the application of the new rules to football which they do not care to uncover before the next season begins, and the scrimmaging in secret is done to afford laboratory practice to see how the plays they propose will work out in actual trial.

The practice will continue just a week longer. It is under the direction of Head Coach Foster Sanford, Captain Moore and Foster Sanford, who was the coach last season, succeed to a great measure in the art of getting down to the fundamental principles of the game, and he will have much valuable information to try before the big games another season. Rockwell's record of three points in basketball is likely to be one of the most valuable recommendations he could have for the Yale game, under the new rules, will include a lot of both long and short, quick passing, and much of the forward passing which makes basketball so brilliant. The passing which the Yale team has practiced and tried to develop from the game of English Rugby played with Englishmen here will make a most valuable addition to the Yale game under the new rules, it is expected. Most Yale men who have watched the practice say that they are convinced that game will be much rougher than under the new rules.

The assertion of Yale's coaching staff for next year has not yet been settled. Aside from Rockwell there will be a regular coach, but whether Sanford will be appointed or not is not decided.

Ex-Captain Frank Hinkey, who was one of the regular coaches last Fall, is now managing a mine in the Rockies, and it is feared that he will be too busy to give much time to the team the coming Fall.

COLLEGE GAMES TODAY.

CIRCUIT MEET AT CLEVELAND STILL IN DOUBT

Whether Cleveland will have a Grand Circuit meeting will not be definitely decided till Thursday, the date set for the annual meeting of the directors of the Cleveland Driving Park Company.

When it was planned to raise $15,000 by public subscription for the purpose of making up the deficit of giving a meeting without book selling, and also to maintain the track and give a good meeting, Saturday's meeting was thought that the amount could be easily secured.

Up to date, however, only about $8,000 has been subscribed. The parties back of the movement intend to make a special effort to raise the sum before the annual meeting this week and hope to be successful.

Even if they fail and no Grand Circuit meeting is held, the matinee club will probably arrange for loose the track for the next four or five months, thus assuring them of a good training place and an opportunity of giving their matinees.

PENN DROPPED BY HARVARD IN FOOTBALL

According to the announcement of Chairman White, of the Harvard Athletic Committee, Harvard has dropped Penn in football for the present, and probably for good. It seems that the Philadelphia college wanted to know immediately if Harvard were going to play football next season, as they wished to complete their schedule. Harvard's answer must have been a jolt to the Penn management.

It is no surprise to local followers of the game that Harvard has broken off football relations with Penn on the football field. Football has taken on quite different sort than those of Pennsylvania. What game will take place of the Penn contest next Fall, if anything is played at the Cambridge institution, is of speculation.

The Harvard football players will get their first Spring football practice this afternoon at 3 o'clock, when the first scrimmage will be carried out under the direction of Captain Hathaway Foster and coach Bill Reid.

HARVARD MAY HAVE CREW IN HARLEM RACES

NEW YORK, April 30.—The Harlem Boat Club men found the going very much to their liking yesterday, and the warm hazy weather impressed most of them as just right for training purposes. The approach of the Memorial Day regatta is making most of them hurry to do their training and be fit for that occasion. There was a lot of interest along the row over the report that Harvard not unlikely would be represented in the senior eights competition.

Secretary-Treasurer Sam A. Cramer said that he was assured of a set of out-of-town entries and that he had a half promise from Harvard to be represented. As Columbia annually starts a crew in this race, it will be the first time that college crews have cut so prominent a figure in the Harlem regatta and in addition the first time that Harvard and Columbia have met in a boat race for nearly seventeen years.

STEVENS' VANDERBILT RACE CAR MAY BE IN HILL CLIMB

BY J. C. KERRISON.

"The only reason why I decline to match my Vanderbilt winner for the meet at Boston on Memorial Day," said S. B. Stevens of Rome, N. Y., "is that it is not equipped with a differential, and to drive it at speed on a circular track would be tempting fate. Continuing the utilitarian theme, the man said, "I would not drive the car on a track and I will never ask a man to do a thing which I would not do myself. If the Worcester Automobile Club will make an even go in its hill climb on May 24 I will enter and bring the car to that city."

Accident Last Year.

A year ago Mr. Stevens brought his Ormond racer to the hill climb, but was most unfortunate, inasmuch as his crank shaft broke at a time when victory was his.

The Massachusetts Highway Commission is to immediately commence the construction of a new State highway between Middleboro and Bridgewater. It is to follow what is known as the new dock street route.

Colonel Horace G. Kemp, who for years commanded the First Battalion Cavalry, M. V. M., is one of the most enthusiastic of motorists. He was a pioneer in that whole world, and has toured thousands upon thousands of miles. He and his family are contemplating an extended tour through New England in his new Haynes car.

President Louis R. Sponsler of the Bay State Automobile Association believes that it is not too late for the organized motorists of the country taking a hand in assisting the unfortunates of San Francisco. With that idea in view he has opposed correspondence with President Farson of the A. A. A.

Writing from Ormond, Fla., Mr. J. Anderson sends the information that plans for the proposed pleasure tour from New York and Boston to Boston Woods are almost completed. The ellnts of Mr. Washington has been disconfirmed, and instead there will be a week's festivities at Boston Woods, including a trial of endurance on the Crawford Notch.

E. R. Hollander of the Hol-Ton Co. will return to New York in a day or two and then efforts will be made to bring about a match between Cedrino with the Flat Junior and some other equally good man and machine for the races at Readville.

Notes of the Harness Horses.

Boston horsemen will be pleased to know that James O. Gray has been very successful with his running stable the past Winter, as at Hot Springs he stood third in the list of money-winning owners. He is now at the Memphis meeting. It was Mr. Gray that done so much with the Old Sangun track, making it popular with the trotting horsemen. In those days he campaigned a string of pacers and trotters, which included Captain White, 2:15, etc.

Hon. J. M. Johnson has refused an offer of $10,000 for the breed mare Fanella, 2:13, the dam of Sadie Mac, 2:06¾, and the noted stalling Wada, 2:14¾. It is just her kind that he wants to keep at the Johnson Farm. She is by Joe Patchen, is a fast trotter and will be brought East and campaigned with the rest of the doctor's horses.

Learn the Good, Old-Fashioned Art of Keeping House

By Beatrice Fairfax

EVERY girl hopes to be married some day.

It is quite natural that she should, for to have her husband, children and home is the best fate that can happen to any woman.

But I wonder how many girls are getting ready to properly fulfill their mission. How many girls know anything about housekeeping?

The finer arts are very delightful, but I tell you, girls, that the good, old-fashioned art of making a comfortable home for a man is the one that counts most in the long run.

Men are material creatures and appreciate comfort more than they do high art.

Piano playing and fancy work won't keep a man home in the evenings, but a comfortable chair in which to sit and smoke his after-dinner cigar and a good light to read his paper by will hold him at his own fireside.

Every wife should know how to cook, even though she may be able to afford to hire a servant to do the cooking for her.

If she does not know how to do it herself she cannot criticise the cook intelligently when she makes mistakes.

You can't keep a man well and happy if he has poor meals.

His digestion and temper will both suffer, and there will be unhappiness and discomfort all round.

Many of my girl readers are busy from morning till night earning their living, but I advise them all to seize every possible opportunity to learn the simpler rules of cooking.

They can perhaps find time to learn how to cook meat properly and also vegetables.

And don't forget that you must learn how to make a pie, girls.

Some way or other every man in the world seems to take naturally to pie.

A good cook learns how to utilize every scrap.

An extravagant wife is a curse to a man; she keeps his head below water all the time he spending all he earns and never saving in any way. And in no way can there be more waste than in the kitchen.

Help your mother about the house—a good daughter makes a good wife.

Be gentle and tender with the little brothers and sisters.

Some day you will have babies of your own, and then you will wonder how you could ever have failed to see how pretty, cunning ways of the little folks.

Be neat about your person and your room. An untidy girl makes a slovenly wife.

Keep yourself well and strong, for no girl has a right to burden a man with a delicate wife.

Going to dances night after night will not make you healthy.

A normal, sensible life, with wholesome food and all the fresh air and exercise you can get, is what will make a strong, healthy woman of you.

I don't want you to give up your pretty accomplishments, dear girls, but I do want you to learn the sterling, sensible accomplishments first.

Don't forget that to keep a man happy and good natured you must keep him comfortable.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

DON'T WORRY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been calling on a young lady three times a week for the past two months, but did not ask to keep steady company with her until last evening. She somewhat disliked to answer the question, otherwise than, "You have been calling right along, why not do the same now?" But after asking again she answered "yes," but asked that I not call on Friday evenings, as she desired to help her mother do things at home, but it at her leisure or if she was going anywhere on that evening she would let me know. I like the girl very much, and am at a loss to know what she meant by my calling Friday even ings. I think she likes me.

ANXIOUS.

Well, she probably does, or she would not have accepted your friendship. She probably was speaking the truth when she said she would be busy on Friday evenings. There is no reason why you should worry about it. Call on her other evenings.

THE ONLY THING TO DO

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl and was engaged to a widower, and was to have been married in August. But for the past few months he has treated me very mean. If we would have to go out together he would lose his temper and start to curse me, and I found out he told me lies. A few days ago I told him I would not marry him, in a joke, and the next day I received a letter saying he would keep it and other jewelry back, so I gave it to him and have not heard from him since. Do you think, Miss Fairfax, I did wrong in giving them back?

YOU did quite right in sending back his gifts. It was the only thing you could do after he had asked for them. You would not have been happy with a man like him, and did well to break the engagement.

A FOOLISH GIRL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am seventeen years of age and am a student of a business college and also in an instructor I dearly love. He does not know me any more than any other student, and I do not know how to win him over. I would do anything in the world to win him, and if I don't I think that I will go insane.

HEARTBROKEN RUTH.

WHAT nonsense, my dear. You will get all over it in no time. He probably looks on you as a little girl and would be amazed if he knew that you were interested in him. Put him out of your head like a good, little girl. You won't get on well with your studies if you allow yourself to grow interested in your instructor.

ASK HER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man and in love with a young lady nineteen years old. How can I find out whether she cares for me or not? We never told our love to one another. And I would like to find out.

ANXIOUS.

THE only way you can find out is by asking her. Do not be timid. Girls don't care for sweethearts that are too timid to tell their love.

INVISIBLE CHECK TAFFETA COSTUME

VERY smart, indeed, are the invisible check taffeta costumes. This one is of brown and white and trimmed with bands of narrow brown velvet ribbon.

They form a design on the coat and sleeves and just below the knee on the skirt.

The hat most in keeping with this suit is a stiff straw in dull brown, with shading of plumes varying in color from brown to white, and brown to the best shade of rose.

What's This? Should All Women at Twenty-one Be Called "Mrs."?

Is There Any Valid Reason Why All Women Should Be Labelled With Their Matrimonial Condition?

By Dorothy Dix

MARCEL PREVOST'S recent declaration that all women who have reached maturity, whether married or single, should be addressed as "Mrs." just as all men are called "Mr." has stirred up much discussion in the fifth estate.

And the fifth estate is the blessed estate of the bachelor girl who has not married because she didn't want to, and who is possessed of an occupation, a pocketbook, and a latch key of her own.

M. Prevost declares "in the interest of unmarried old ladies that it is ridiculous to coo "Mademoiselle" to them, and that they have a right to resent being put into the same plane with chits who are still wearing their hair in braids. Further, he holds that the absurd usage drives into matrimony many sensitive souls who would be much better off unmarried, and more useful and happy.

This view of the subject commends itself to every woman who has passed the kindergarten stage of existence, and if not to a very interesting and animated debate the other night at a business woman's club in this city.

Here one young woman protested against the absurdity of being addressed by a title that carries with it the implication of artless unsophistication and youthful incompetence, and that should be the exclusive property of school girls, just as "master" is of school boys.

A Serious Matter

INDEED, so heartily was this representative body of business women in favor of shedding the belittling and misleading title of "Miss" that one energetic woman sent out, on the spot, and ordered a new set of cards with "Mrs." on them.

To men, perhaps, it may seem a small matter whether a woman is addressed as "Miss" or "Miss," for it was a man that first announced the cheerful theory that there is nothing in a name anyhow, but every woman knows that to be called "Miss" after she is twenty-one years old is an embarrassment and a disadvantage, both in society and business.

The reason that there has always been more odium attached to being an old maid than being an old bachelor is because the man who does not marry is not doomed to support the bread-and-buttery title of "master" long after he has grown a beard and gotten bald-headed and made a place for himself in the world.

It is the incongruity of a woman who, as Thackeray said of Lady Kew's daughter, "is forty years, and has heard all there is to tell," being addressed by the same appellation as sweet and silly sixteen is that has made the old maid unconsciously ridiculous.

A woman who is addressed as "Miss" always seems to require a chaperon. There is a kind of traditional helplessness about her that you can't get over, and that is a bar to her success, and, most maddening of all, the general public has the impudence to pity her.

Poor thing, she never had a husband, and people inundate her with sympathy, though she may be the happiest with joy every day of her life because she is single.

Blow to Matrimony

ON the other hand, to address a woman as "Mrs." if she is status as completely as to call a man "Dr." or "Col." or "Rev." does him. It states that she is a woman of mature age.

She may be either married or single, but it's nobody's business which she is. The very title recognizes her independence, her ability to take care of herself, and a right to as much liberty as a married woman, and, chiefest good of all, it stops the pitying glances directed at her because she is a spinster.

There is no earthly reason why a woman should be labelled with her matrimonial condition.

It can only do her any good, and it may do her harm to inform people the instant she is introduced to them, or sends in her card, that she is an old maid, and if a popular movement should be started for the suppression of "Miss" and the substitution of the title of "Mrs." among women of a certain age it would fill a long-felt want.

But it would be an awful blow at matrimony, for many a woman marries to avoid having spinster engraved on her tombstone.

Delicious Ways of Preparing Spinach

ONE vegetable that deserves a few words specially is spinach. Spinach is a very delicate dish which there has been much discussion of late with regard to the best mode of cooking.

Some persons maintain that spinach is best cooked in a very large quantity of water, on the other hand, there are those who maintain that it is best cooked with scarcely any water at all. No one will be able to detect which way the spinach has been cooked by the simple process of eating, though, of course, where it has been cooked in very little water the juice that runs from it is a much darker green than if it had been cooked in a great deal of water.

Spinach makes a great show before it is cooked, but evaporates very little space afterwards, and a great deal depends upon seeing at the starting that the spinach is thoroughly washed.

Now you cannot wash spinach like you do ordinary greens, and the best method to pursue is to place it in a deep pail of water. The spinach floats on the top and the dirt settles at the bottom. After, therefore, having moved the spinach about with a pail of water take it off the top of the water with the fingers and throw it into a basin.

Empty the water and wash it once again in some fresh water. Another point that should be borne in mind in washing is that all the stalks of the spinach should be picked carefully away, and the best way to let the spinach drain upon a sieve.

Then throw it, a handful at a time, into a large stewpan or saucepan of boiling water that has been well salted and boil it until it becomes tender.

Losing the Color

Francatelli, who is undoubtedly a very great authority on the subject of cooking, recommends as soon as spinach is cooked tender to drain it off in a colander and then immerse the spinach in cold water thoroughly, and afterwards squeeze it in a cloth so that all the water is removed from it.

Probably the idea is to remove as much as possible of the spinach green and water in which spinach has been boiled is of a very bright green, which is considered in the minds of many persons, green water of any description, whether spinach or not, is fashionable. In the case of boiling greens and cabbages it is the sulphuretted smell in the water in which greens have been boiled that is unpleasant. It is important that the cook not to pour the green water down the sink while it is hot, as by doing so she causes an unpleasant smell to pervade the house.

Possibly there may be a prejudice against spinach owing to the fact that many use the method of boiling the spinach with just sufficient water to moisten the bottom of the saucepan, and literally let the spinach stew down into the pulp, which is quite another thing. The spinach the whole of the green juice of which should be extracted from it were it boiled in a very large saucepan of boiling water.

A Sort of Puree

Francatelli recommends that after the spinach has been boiled, washed in cold water, and the cold water then extracted, it should be pounded in a mortar, then passed through a coarse wire sieve, and placed in a stewpan with a little butter, salt and grated nutmeg. He also recommends at the finish, when it is quite made hot again to add a gravy spoonful of good sauce and about four ounces of fresh butter. This, of course, makes the spinach into more of a dipped puree.

Spinach is generally served with eggs. These eggs should be either hard boiled or poached. Hard-boiled eggs look pretty good, but if you poach them for the purpose of being served on the top of spinach you can throw rather hard. Then take up each poached egg in a slice with the left hand, and with a knife in the right hand trim the white round rather close to the yolk.

By this means, if you have poached the eggs properly, you will have the yellow yolk surrounded by a rim of the white part of the egg not more than a quarter of an inch wide. When this is done the eggs are almost as pretty as if the hard-boiled eggs were cut in half, and look nice on the spinach.

There is no doubt, if you take the trouble, spinach is much nicer if rubbed through a hair sieve. Cooks are too apt to think that spinach is all that it should be by simply being cut across with a knife and fork.

MILK REMOVES INK STAINS

WHEN freshly spilled, ink can be removed from carpets be wet in milk. Take carefully up the ink ting and soak up all of the ink it will receive, being careful not to let it spread. Then take fresh cotton, wet in milk, and sop it up carefully. Repeat this operation, changing cotton and milk each time.

After most of the ink has been taken up in this way, with fresh cotton and clean, rub the spot. Continue till all disappears; then wash the spot in clear, cold water and a little soap; rinse in clean water and rub till nearly dry. If the ink is dried in there is no way that will not take the color from the carpet as well as the ink, unless the ink is on a white spot. In that case salts of lemon or oxalic acid, with starch and lemon juice will remove the ink as easily as if on cotton.

"Shadows of New York"

CHAPTER XV.—Continued

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal-Examiner.

DOUBTLESS the odd, unexpected arrival last night of a sister of their manager, whose existence they had never before heard of, would provoke plenty of comment in the servants' hall; but that they would associate this woman in their minds with the fugitive for whom the police were hunting he had no fear.

After last night's proof of her powers as an actress he felt he could trust Olga Vail to play her part perfectly while he was confined under his roof.

He made a pretense of eating, conscious of West's eyes, but he had no appetite. He turned to the servant.

"You need not stay, West."

It was a relief to be alone, out of the range of observant eyes. He was glad Olga Vail had not come down yet, that he had not to face her that morning, when he felt so shaken and unnerved.

He had him awake for hours last night, listening feverishly. But the sound he dreaded to hear, the repetition of that sound of the alarm bell in the tower, had not come again, and at last he had almost persuaded himself that his excited nerves had played a trick on his imagination.

How could it have been otherwise? Of course the man had been dead when he locked the door on that inert form. Haggard repeated the assurance to himself again this morning, more emphatically perhaps than he felt.

He would see Olga Vail when he came back from the office that afternoon; he must arrive at a definite understanding with her. If she knew his secret, at least she would keep silent for her own sake about what she knew; her own safety demanded it. He would furnish her with money to leave America; there would probably be no difficulty about inducing her to do that. But he was glad to be spared the interview this morning.

Haggard caught an earlier train than usual to town. There was plenty of work demanding his attention in New York; to plunge into work might help to distract his thoughts from what lay behind that locked door, the key of which he carried in his pocket.

A man he knew got into the same car and greeted him boldly. Haggard pretended to be absorbed in his newspaper, but his acquaintance persisted in talking about the railway disaster, about the woman suspected of the murder of Pilgrim, who has escaped from the wrecked train, and had not yet been recaptured.

Marvellous how she escaped; the police in charge of her must be fearfully and wonderfully stupid. And they say that the woman was remarkably handsome—a perfect beauty, outburst. Pretty woman, too, she is, they say. I suppose you didn't see the beauty in distress, eh, Haggard?" with a laugh. "I'm the police watched your grounds for her, didn't they?"

In Haggard's present state of mind the man's talk irritated him to the limit of his endurance. He answered in such monosyllables that at last his companion took the hint and devoted himself to his paper, leaving Haggard to his thoughts.

He had two people to fear. Not only the woman; there was the clerk Grieve. Grieve knew of the [illegible] partner's unexpected visit last night; further, he had noticed Robert Wynter's overcoat when he came back. Who could say, when the strange disappearance of Robert Wynter became known, whether Grieve might not jump to conclusions, and prove dangerous?

It was fortunate that Grieve had gone away from the office on a fortnight's holiday. On his return, with the premised rise of salary, the man would hardly be so blind to his own interests as to let his tongue talk too freely. And he could prove nothing. Whatever he might suspect, he had proof of nothing. So Haggard's thoughts ran in an endless circle all the way to New York.

The clerks were surprised to see the junior partner so early, as Philip Haggard made through into his inner office.

He sat down at his desk and plunged forcibly into the morning's correspondence. But he could not pin his thoughts down: what he read conveyed no meaning to him.

Try as he would to concentrate his mind on his work, his thoughts kept slipping away to the man who had been talking to him only yesterday in that office, and who now lay lifeless and still behind a locked door.

A clerk entered.

"Mr. John Herries would like to see you, sir."

Mr. John Herries!" Haggard started up from his chair with a rush of utterly guilty apprehension. It could only be Grieve that Herries had come to see. "Show him in," he said after a pause, in a voice that he strove to keep steady.

"Good morning, Mr. Haggard. You will be surprised to see me at such an early hour," said Herries, entering. He advanced to Haggard, his hand outstretched.

It was this act that reassured Haggard. The millionaire would hardly have come to him his hand had there been any suspicion in his mind. But why had Herries tried to speak as if at his ease?

"I expect you have a man of leisure to o'clock seems early," he said, "but hardly so for a business man."

"The fact is, Mr. Haggard, we are rather anxious, rather like Mrs. Wynter is anxious."

"Anxious? How?" Haggard was applying the table tightly by one hand to support himself.

"About Mr. Wynter. He was to leave Yonkers yesterday by the 4 o'clock for New York to catch the boat that left at midnight for Europe. Have you heard from him that he reached New York safely?

Making Time

Haggard wondered desperately as Herries spoke what answer he should give. To assert that he had received a wire would allay the anxiety of the questioner for the moment, but off inquiries for a little—give him time to probe the matter for his own safety.

But it might subsequently be proved that no such telegram had been sent.

No, he dared not risk it; though to answer in the negative would be to precipitate the inquiries he feared.

"I was rather surprised myself," he said after the slightest pause, "not to hear from my partner.

"Then you haven't heard?"

"No."

"It's curious," said Herries, with a little perplexed frown.

"Very curious. You saw him yesterday, I believe? When he left home about noon yesterday he said he had some business at his office before he left. Did you see him at the station?"

"No. I heard from him about four," said Haggard.

The clerk's tendency had suddenly presented itself to him. Would it be wise to admit that Wynter had called to see him at nine o'clock at night at his own house? Such an admission would lead to an immediate search being made in that neighborhood before he had time to dispose of the traces of his presence.

On the other hand, if he did not speak, and it was subsequently discovered that Wynter had been to his place that night, his reticence would be suspicious in a degree.

While he was wavering, uncertain whether to speak or not, the sound of the telephone interrupted the sharp scrutiny of Herries' glance. Haggard started perceptibly: he was a bundle of nerves that morning, and the summons of the telephone was so like the sound that he had fancied he heard in the night that he rushed to the door of the tower.

His secretary, sitting at a desk at the other end of the room rose and went over to the telephone and took down the receiver. The two men paused in their conversation while the clerk answered the call.

"Hullo! Are you there? Yes, Wynter & Co.; that's right. Yes, sir, one moment, I'll see."

The clerk turned to Haggard.

"The assistant manager, Mr. Wynter, is phoning—wishes to speak with you, sir."

CHAPTER XLIV.

Double Treachery

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner.

THERE was little time to scheme or plan. Jefferson knew what was going on—knew what that moment. The thing to do was to escape with life, and that Jack was now determined to do.

He had been intently studying the roof of the cabin. With a view to finding a place where the boards would be most easily pried off, when a movement of Edwards caught his eye.

It was a quick turn toward the window and a signal to some one outside.

Instantly Jack took in the situation. There was treachery in the cabin. Edwards had only pretended to be in a plot with him. He had signaled everything to Grierson, and was merely keeping watch on Jack until that confederate should get a good opportunity to make way with him.

Jack did not for an instant let his companion discover what he had found out.

But for the next few minutes he stole furtive glances at Edwards from time to time and every case ranged him signalling through the window.

What did those signals mean? On that point Jack could only conjecture, but so far had the plan to destroy him gone, and with the next few words more in the game?

Of one thing he felt sure, and that was that Edwards would be spared.

Aside from Jack he was the only officer on board who was capable of sailing her. Therefore the blow would not fall on the two men together.

Jack was to be isolated, and the present plan would be completed by his being treacherously beguiled into the cabin, and struck down.

Jack saw that something must be done at once or he would be stilled.

He pulled his deadlight to a slight angle of a man outside.

Then he folded his arm as if to throw something.

Instantly the man disappeared, and the fumes became stronger than ever.

And all the time he was choking, coughing and struggling vainly weaker under the deadly fumes of the gas.

He began to be conscious of a very great drowsiness.

He fought off the feeling as long as he could, but it was overpowering, irresistible.

Jack saw that escape was impossible, and he would be stilled.

He still had the deadlight in his hand, but there he was. The door opened behind him, and through it came Grierson and Edwards.

"Are you sure he's dead?" said Edwards.

Jack saw that a chance had come, and lay like a log, so that his every movement might not suspect that they had not been successful.

"I'm as sure as I can be," said Grierson. "But just to make a bit surer I'll run this sword through his heart. That ought to settle it for keeps."

CHAPTER XVI.
The Veiled Lady.

MR. HAMMOND sat in a handsomely furnished room with his feet piled up on top of a highly polished table of mahogany. He was smoking a corncob pipe and reeked of bad whiskey and stale beer. Willard Culberson's aesthetic eyes and keenly-tuned nose were equally offended, but he affected to take it all good naturedly because Mr. Hammond was really a valuable person to have about.

"Honest, boss," remarked Mr. Hammond at last, "I ain't never see such a muss kicked up about a fool diamond as this here one."

He refilled his pipe leisurely and adjusted his feet more comfortably on the table, leaving a long scratch across the highly polished surface.

"Gee, the newspapers ain't doing a thing but printing yards and yards about it," he resumed as he lighted the pipe. "Head-lines a foot high, and all about the finest specimen in the world. Fat rewards and nothing else talked about, until I just sizzle with 'The Green Blaze' and dream about it all night. I wake up a dozen times an hour thinking about it. Now, right here, boss, I want to ask, what's the good of it, now we've got it?"

Mr. Hammond eyed Culberson steadily, and that polished gentleman moved uneasily in his seat before he answered.

"Don't talk rubbish, Hammond," he suggested finally. "What's the good of it? You'll see the good of it when you get your share."

"It makes me grin to the tips of my toes, Boss, when I think of the trouble we took to pinch that particular sparkler, seeing as how it looks as if we would have to wait ten years before we can share. Talk about your white elephants! This thing won't blow over much less than ten years, and we'll be all frazzled out, skedaddling over the country with it. It's beginning to strike me as being more sensible to go in for the reward, and shake the glim for awhile."

"And divide twenty-five thousand instead of three hundred thousand?" exclaimed Culberson. "Hammond, you're a fool."

"Guess you've heard that little spell about a bird in the hand? Well?"

"Yes, and I'll take a chance on the two in the bush," retorted Culberson. "So will Davis," he added.

"Also the chance of getting caught. Twenty-five thousand plunks is a heap of money. Besides," and Mr. Hammond was duly thoughtful, "we could pinch it again and do the same thing over. In ten years—lemme see! Just run it up for me, boss. I never was good at figgers."

Culberson glared at his optimistic partner in conspiracy and began to pace the room.

"You're a fool, Hammond," he said again.

"And it occurs to me, too," said Hammond, after a pause, "that there ain't no sense dragging girls into the thing. I think——"

"Don't if it hurts," remarked Culberson cuttingly. "I want to say right now that the girl is my business. You're to do as you're ordered."

"All right, boss, just as you say," and Hammond swept his hand through the air majestically.

"Are you sure?" asked Culberson, "that she did not see you?"

"Certain of it," Hammond answered. Positive, certain, sure. Why it was the prettiest piece of work you ever saw the way we did it. Might have been a slice out of a mellow-drammer. Well, say."

Culberson made a little gesture of impatience.

"Cut out all that," he said sharply. "What really happened?"

"Well," said Mr. Hammond, reminiscently, "Davis tackled the old guy and maybe he didn't fight like a car load of wild cats. I stood back in the dark and the girl peers in. Just as soon as I claps me lamps on her she was mine. Blanket over the head and I rushed her out to the auto. Davis gallops out in another minute and off we goes taking no more notice of speed limit laws than a jack-rabbit. We nearly laid out two guys right off the bat—before we got started good."

Culberson looked at him quickly.

"Did you notice them?" he asked.

"Sure," Hammond replied. "You just couldn't help seeing one of them—he was as big as a house."

"Big?" echoed Culberson.

"Yep, with red whiskers. Looked like a real man, that fellow." Hammond rubbed his chin reflectively. "I'm glad we didn't run up against him before we got in the auto."

"Did he have long, red hair and wear a slouch hat?" queried Culberson, anxiously.

"That's him, boss. Do you know him?"

"Why, that Joe Morgan, who brought the diamond from Australia. I'd have given you five hundred dollars if you'd run over him."

"Such a fine offer," remarked Mr. Hammond sarcastically.

"Well?"

"Well, any way, here we goes and at the right spot we slows down and dumps the girl on the sidewalk, with her head still tied up in the blanket. Mother Bailey wasn't far off and when we clears out she finds the girl and takes care of her."

"Are you sure she went to Cambridge last night?"

"Betcher neck," replied Hammond. "I followed her there and back."

"Fine business," declared Culberson. He examined his watch. "I want you to clear out now, Hammond, and leave me this room for an hour. I'm expecting a visitor. Mind you now, keep straight; cut the booze. I won't stand for it now."

"Just as you say, Boss." Hammond rose good-naturedly to go, then put his hand ostentatiously to his ear. "Hark! I think I hear the rustle of footsteps," he said. "So long."

He went out through an adjoining room as a timid knock came at an outer door. Culberson rose and opened the door to a heavily veiled woman.

$5 DOWN, $1 PER WEEK

The lot of Pianos sent to the salesrooms this week contains many extraordinary bargains. A few more Uprights with beautifully carved cases, such as were sold six weeks ago, will go for a song—when you compare the selling price with the original cost. Our slightly used pianos cannot be told from new instruments. Coming as they do from Boston's best homes, they have been well cared for and have not a sign of wear. We have seen beautiful upright pianos of this class sold for a price that would not half pay for the labor put into their construction. Don't miss this week's sale.

Write to-day for full bargain list. We have dozens of fine Pianos not in the above list, left over from special sales, etc. Some Pianos for beach or country houses almost given away.

Free delivery anywhere in unmarked wagons; goods guaranteed as represented or money refunded; 1,000 rooms to let for storage, building so large; entrance will be where you see the red flag; sales positive all this week; open Sat. eve. till 9. ROXBURY STORAGE SALESROOMS, 725 Shawmut av., corner Williams st., Roxbury.

Take any Shawmut av. car or the Elevated to Northampton st. and change for car going up Washington to Williams st.

A MAN ONCE SAID

He would some day own a Piano, but he always put it off with the idea he could not afford it, etc. Now, if we can show you a plan whereby by the outlay of a few pennies a day you may possess one of the best pianos in the world, would you try it? If so, and you want further particulars cut out this coupon.

PIANO SLAUGHTER
STORAGE SALE

A GREAT many people are ignorant of the fact that the best possible opportunity to buy a piano at the lowest possible price is to get one at the Storage Sale. Sometimes the finest pianos that are made go almost for a song. Some pianos of the best makes that have been used only slightly, and at that in the best of homes, are sold for prices that seem impossibly low. New and second-hand pianos are sold regardless of price.

Pianos go for prices much lower than an auction would bring. There is no one to bid at a piano storage sale, the price is simply put on; first come, first served, and the careful, economical man or woman who wants to buy a piano economically, in fact, more than economically, will watch the storage sales carefully.

The gilded piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little, go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.

Several nice upright pianos which must be sold at a sacrifice; 2 nice uprights, Chickering and Vose, $40 and $50; nearly new mahogany uprights, 3 pedals, latest style, at ½ Boston prices; reason why, no large rents, big salaries or commissions to be paid; no fancy floors; our expenses about $5 a day; Boston warerooms' expense $300 to $500 daily; our terms the most liberal; free carting, free tuning and 3 months' lessons with each piano; why not see us at once and thus save the agents' enormous profits? SHAWMUT PIANO CO., 720A Shawmut av., Roxbury, Mass.; open till 9 P. M.

"I bought a piano from Lincoln & Parker. Where else should I go? They use people white."

This is a remark which was overheard this week. If you wish to be used white see us and hear the soul of the Krakauer sing. We are upstairs, opposite the Hotel Touraine.

LINCOLN & PARKER, 211 Tremont St

PEOPLE are getting wiser every day; that is the reason our business is always good and increased every year. If you want value, go to BLAKE'S. Special values in small uprights—Davis & Son, Erhardt and Bailey, at $75, $100, $125; also some second-hand uprights of our regular lines at $100 to $200; new uprights, every improvement, veneered case, fully plate, ivory keys, at $150; Standard New York and Boston uprights at lowest prices in Boston; squares and organs, $5 to $100, best value. 564 Washington st., established 1869; elevator.

DON'T FORGET to see Blake when you purchase your piano; 150 always in stock, and you can select at prices from $75 to $450 for an upright that will cost more elsewhere. We give best value as 100,000 customers will testify. 564 Washington st., elevator; established 1869.

PROMINENT MUSIC TEACHER will sell her beautiful guaranteed upright piano cheap, cash or easy terms; would give one year's lessons to purchaser. Apply after 4 p. m., all day Sunday, at 30 Moreland st., Roxbury.

"I Come to Thee, O My Darling!"

Won't Somebody Please Write Sensible Love Poetry—Since We Must Consume It?

We receive as a present from the author a small green book named "Rhapsody."

Mr. Alfred Hitch wrote the book. Here is a sample of the poetry:

"I COME TO THEE, O MY DARLING!"

I come to thee, O my darling!
Faint with the longing of years,
Weak with unsatiate passion,
And burnt with its scalding tears.

I have come from the Town of Ambition,
Through the Wood of the Heart-Sick Dove,
To dream in the Temple of Beauty,
And feed on the lilies of love.

We have no complaint to make of this poem, because it is the usual thing, or even more so. But we do intend to make a suggestion that ought to be of the greatest financial value to poets.

We wish to say, O poets, that the world in its progress has almost got beyond feeding on lilies. The "heart-sick doves" are to be found among the things of the past with the omnibuses that ran up and down Broadway in New York City, the bustle, the pullback and the hoopskirt.

We can tell poets just what kind of love poetry they should write, although we cannot make it rhyme.

Don't say that you are "burnt with scalding tears," and especially don't say that you "come from the Town of Ambition," when your mind is fit for nothing but thinking about some estimable young person in blue.

Write in this way to the young lady, and see how popular you will be:

I wish to say that I am a respectable young man, and I shouldn't wonder if I might amount to something if I had you to keep me at it all the time. As for you, you represent my ideal of all the good qualities up to date. I am positive that your most intelligent son will be President, the next most intelligent will be the head of a big college, and the third most intelligent a first-class newspaper editor or merchant.

I have been thinking about you a great deal—without, however, letting that interfere with business. I realize that, to make up for my inferior qualities as compared with you, I have got to be a permanent worker, even now, while things are made pretty dull by my uncertainty concerning you. Please reply in the enclosed stamped and addressed envelope at your earliest convenience.

Another short poem from the same book is as follows:

"AS A THRUSH THAT SINGS IN THE HEDGE."

As a thrush that sings in the hedge,
And dies ere its song is sung;
As a flower that blooms in the morn,
And fades ere the day is done;
So the maid with beautiful face
Soon turns to a wrinkled dame;
So the voice of gladness and mirth
Soon ends in a cry of pain.

That also is in the old style of poetry.

We are glad to say it is no longer true. The "maid with a beautiful face" does NOT turn "to a wrinkled dame."

Not a bit of it. The maid with the beautiful face takes exercise, keeps young, gets more intelligent without being any less good looking. She improves steadily from twenty-five to forty. And at forty she enters upon the most interesting and desirable phase of her career, which lasts from forty on INDEFINITELY.

There was a time when young women with pinched waists, pinched feet, afflicted with "the vapors," believing that beauty consisted in paleness and fainting fits, used to fade away.

But that time has gone by, and poets should write their poems accordingly.

The modern poem should say in the usual pleasing rhyme fashion, about this:

You are very good looking now, at eighteen, but you are nothing but a child. And if I didn't know how extraordinarily you are going to improve for the next fifty years I shouldn't be as frantically anxious as I am to become your permanent partner.

I shall enjoy studying with you, but what interests me chiefly is my belief that between us in about forty years from now we will turn out a good, intelligent couple, able to think straight, enjoy life, and get something worth while out of the leisure that we shall have earned together, when our children are big enough to look after themselves and justify the pains we have taken with them.

These suggestions, of course, are very superficial and prosaic. But we really believe that there is a demand for poetry by some high-strung rhymer who will give us the REAL, SOLID things in life, dropping the food of lilies, the wounded doves, the cries of pain and the rest of it. Poets, please write the things that men want to say.

The "heart-sick dove" is the sister of the dodo.

The Fountains

By Wex Jones

In romances old
Of founts we're told
Where nymphs would dive and splatter,
And shoot the chutes
Sans bathing suits
Till spotted by a satyr;
But we've eschewed
The solitude
Of leafy forest places,
And hold a fount
Of no account
Without the urban graces.
We do strange stunts
With marble fronts
And canopied pagodas—
An ornate well,
Distinctly "swell,"
Which spouts a thousand sodas!
A name for each—
Plum, cherry, peach,
Pineapple, quince, vanilla,
Nut, lemon, lime—
A handy rhyme—
Strawberry, pear, quinquilla.
And names more queer
Are blazoned here:
Like floats and snaps and Sundae
(A lot we've missed,
Or else the list
Would run from Mon—to Monday).
Around there whirls
A crowd of girls
Who'd make (the nymphs look two-spots,
For here in rows
Are beauty shows
The world can touch in few spots.
Girls light and gay
Here stow away
Ice cream by scores of dishes,
And fluffy girls,
All lace and curls,
Will swill like toper fishes.
They run and rush
These nymphs, and crush
Around the bright pagoda,
For pipes of Pan
Are "also ran"
Beside the pipes of soda!

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT objects to foreign nations aiding the sufferers in San Francisco, but there is no record showing that he raised any objections to contributions from all parts of the habitable globe to the late bride of the White House.

The earthquake may be able to do what cannot be done otherwise; it may induce the "Stand-Patters" to open the way for the admission of steel without the high tariff now in operation. This terrible calamity may become the entering wedge by which that tariff may ultimately be destroyed.

A certain preacher in the backwoods of Alabama, so it's said, preached on the subject of "Tainted Money," and the sermon had two points which he expounded with great eloquence. They were: "First, Taint Enough. Second, Taint Mine."

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Are You Using Your Time in Building Earthly Homes or Are You Looking Toward the Eternal?

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner.

It is a curious thing, this mind of man. Not one of us but knows and realizes from the hour we begin to understand the fact of existence that dissolution of the body waits each mortal on earth finally.

Not one but in his heart knows each morning when he rises from his couch and each night when he retires to sleep that he may never see another day.

Death is possible to the child, to the youth, to the man or matron, at any hour or moment.

Acute indigestion, caused by drinking a glass of ice-cold milk when the system was nervously tired, caused the death of a beautiful young actress, apparently in good health, in a few moments after she entered a restaurant.

Automobile and equestrian accidents are recorded continually all over the world; heart failure is an almost every-day occurrence, and no man or woman takes a train or a boat for any length of journey without the subconscious mind records the possibility of sudden death.

Yet when a great world-shaking catastrophe, like the Galveston flood, the Mount Pelee or Mount Vesuvius eruption, or the San Francisco earthquake and conflagration occurs, humanity seems to awaken for the first time to the fact that death may come at any moment.

All Too Worldly

In the face of the knowledge they have always possessed, men and women of brain and good sense, and seeming faith, have gone on year after year in the pursuit of purely selfish and worldly pleasures and ambitions; they have sought the accumulation of money and property; they have pushed and scrambled and fought for place and power; they have allowed envy and jealousy to disturb the beautiful hours of life given us for self-development and the cultivation of the best within us; they have been made miserable by the loss of some material thing, a jewel or a garment; tears have been shed because of banquets and feasts to which they were not bidden; and the higher principles of life have been sacrificed to purchase temporary power and paltry honors or to obtain the luxuries of civilization.

All the sermons preached from fashionable churches to which these people have been liberal supporters have failed to bring them to a realization of the utter emptiness of such standards of life, but when Nature thundered forth her sermon on the instability of earthly blessings and the weakness of mortal power, and the fragility of material possessions, then and then only they awoke to see and feel and know the facts which had been told them a thousand times before only to be considered superficially and regarded as tiresome platitudes.

They made polite excuses and pleaded immediate engagements when any friend attempted to turn the conversation to the more serious side of life, its responsibilities and its obligations to self-development; and they dozed comfortably in upholstered pews while the pastor talked of these things; giving liberally to the church fund, to keep him pacified, while they went forth to striving and envying and worldliness, as before.

On the Other Side

But when from the vast cathedral of space Nature speaks and says, "Listen! let me tell you what earthly honors and wealth and power and achievements mean in the great scale of existence." Then men and women pause in their busyness and sellings, in their strivings and envyings, in their bickerings and contentions, over the comparatively worthless things of existence, and cry aloud, "How uncertain is life; how certain death."

And sweeping through their consciousness the great truths of all time are for a season, at least, impressed upon them; those truths which alone make this life worth the pangs of birth, the worries of childhood, the vicissitudes of youth and the sorrows of maturity.

Those great truths, which are the foundation of all lasting happiness, and lie at the base of the structure of the only thing which endures through the ages, character.

Earth life is, in the eyes of the Creator, no more than one step on a ladder reaching from earth to invisible heights; it is given man that he may climb to higher realms.

Not on great buildings, built of stone or steel, not on the construction of wonderful aqueducts and discoveries of electrical wonders, does man climb; unless with all these steps in material progress his soul, too, keeps climbing by the development of self-control and unselfishness and brotherly love and humanitarianism and spiritual consciousness.

The mind of every individual is creating mentally the mansion he will occupy in the next stage of existence after this.

To that next stage you may at any moment be called.

What sort of a house will you find on the other side?
